The dawning of a new day over Central Kentucky. The beauty and wonderment of the Bluegrass State comes alive with the rising sun.

Ask a student at Eastern "what are the school's colors?" "Maroon and white," they'll answer, but that's not always right; the colors of the surrounding community are so much more varied and beautiful. The soft yellow lights of the fountain silhouetting a pensive student, the crisp orange of fall trees and the glowing red of a Kentucky sunrise, these sights and countless others make the "Campus Beautiful" truly something to see.

The awareness of an education has always been the first and foremost idea at Eastern but there are some people who have their own thoughts of University life . . .

"... Oh, father and mother pay all the bills and we have all the fun — hooray! That's what we do in college." —Owen Johnson (Yale University, 1912)

Besides being fun, college life is many other things. For many of us it's the first time away from the safety of home. It's a time when people change, both emotionally and physically. It's a time when people begin to think for themselves and make their own decisions.

It's a time for growing up.

To sleep; to dream.
To think; to study.
To seek; to find.
To question; to know.
To imagine; to discover.
To smile; to enjoy.
To live; to love.

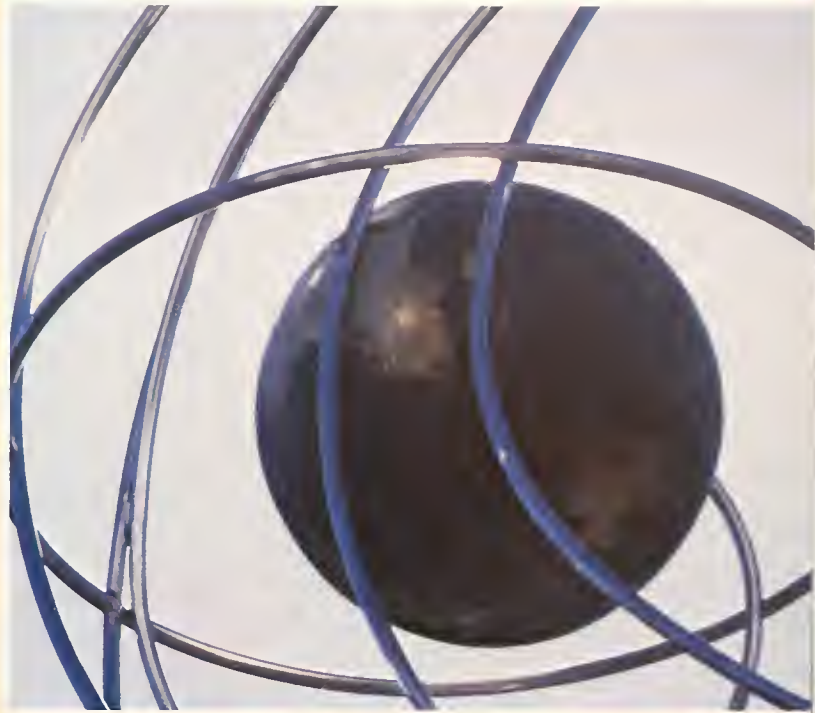

"Everyone of us in the world have our audience to play to; we study them and we try to do it so it will apeal to what we think is the great majority. We all have our particular little line of applesauce for each occasion. So let's be honest with ourselves, and not take ourselves too serious, and never condemn the other fellow for doing what we are doing every day, only in a different way." —Will Rogers.

Shakespeare once asked, "Is it possible that so short a time can alter the condition of a man?" The answer is undoubtedly, yes!

Cautious, lonely, and a little afraid is the student that first walks onto campus, but when that student walks out, diploma in hand, he can look back on his days at Eastern with fond memories and can look ahead to the life awaiting him.

SPECIAL REPORT: THE 70's

The end of a year is a natural time to pause and remember, to reflect upon the changes time has brought about, but when the end of a year also marks the passing of a decade one pauses longer. There is more to remember, the changes of ten years to reflect upon.

TEN YEARS!

Despite what geologists, archaeologists and otherologists who work with centuries the way most people work with minutes will say, ten years is a long time. There is room for much change in ten years. Especially in the 70's. Especially at Eastern Kentucky University.

The 70's were years of tremendous growth here.

They were the years in which President Robert Martin saw the maturation of his "Vision of Greatness."

And they were the years that J. C. Powell, succeeding Martin as president in 1976, took the physically mature University and began to expand it in another direction — quality programs.

This is the story of the 70's at Eastern.

1970: The beginning of the Age of Aquarius was hailed by the 1960 MILESTONE; "a time when peace would guide our planet . . . with its dreams of social justice and understanding." And that all seemed possible as the nation put behind it the turbulence of the '60's. But the Age of Aquarius was postponed at Eastern, and across the nation — a lot of dreams were shattered by that tragic day at Kent State.

But despite the blot Kent State put on the year, 1970 was still a year of promise at Eastern, for the campus was changing fast, expanding as the physical growth initiated by President Martin in the 60's peaked. The many half-finished buildings were a symbol of the future at Eastern Kentucky.

During the 1971-72 academic year construction finished on the Meditation Chapel, and on the Powell and Wallace buildings, all three on the site of old Hanger Field. The completion of these buildings signaled the end of construction at the center of campus. Construction continued on the fringes, but for the first time in almost a decade the campus proper was in finished form.

With winter came the annual epidemic of basketball fever, and with the Colonels picked as pre-season favorites in the OVC, the disease was in especially virulent form at Eastern. But Coach Guy Strong's team had to survive a murderous conference battle and a playoff game with Murray before they could wear the conference crown and gain an NCAA tournament invitation.

In the first round of that tournament, the Colonels drew the Florida State Seminoles, who had beaten them earlier in the season. But that game was in Tallahassee. On a neutral court the Colonels knew they could give the Seminoles a game. And they did, falling behind early but engineering a gutsy comeback that fell just a bit short. The Colonels lost it 83-81 to the eventual national runners-up.

Construction continued at the edges of the University. The Campbell building neared completion, and workers began construction on the Law Enforcement-Traffic Safety Center.

As it would still be six years later, Open House was an issue of controversy between students and administrators. Eight open houses were scheduled for the 1972-73 school year, and that was a liberal policy compared to years past. And what did students think about this "liberalization?" Linda Bertram, who was serving as Walters Hall president, saw the eight open houses as a "big step towards open visitation," which she predicted would be at Eastern "in two years." Steve Tevis, president of O'Donnell, wasn't quite so optimistic about open visitation, saying "In about ten years, we here at Eastern may have them."

1973-74

The 1973-74 academic year marked Eastern Kentucky University's 100th year anniversary. What started as Central University in 1873 went through several stages of evolution, the last being Governor Breathitt's move in 1966 to elevate Eastern Kentucky State College to university status. This was more than a mere change in names; this change provided President Robert R. Martin with the wherewithal to fulfill his "Vision of Greatness," in the '70's.

The Centennial Year also brought sadness as President-Emeritus William F. O'Donnell died in March of 1974. O'Donnell served as President of Eastern from 1941 to 1960.

1974-75

The 1974 football Colonels brought the OVC crown back to Eastern for the first time since 1968. A come-from-behind victory over the Morehead Eagles in the final game of the season gave Eastern a 6-1 conference record (8-2 overall) and the title. And winning on their home turf made it all the sweeter for the Colonels and their fans.

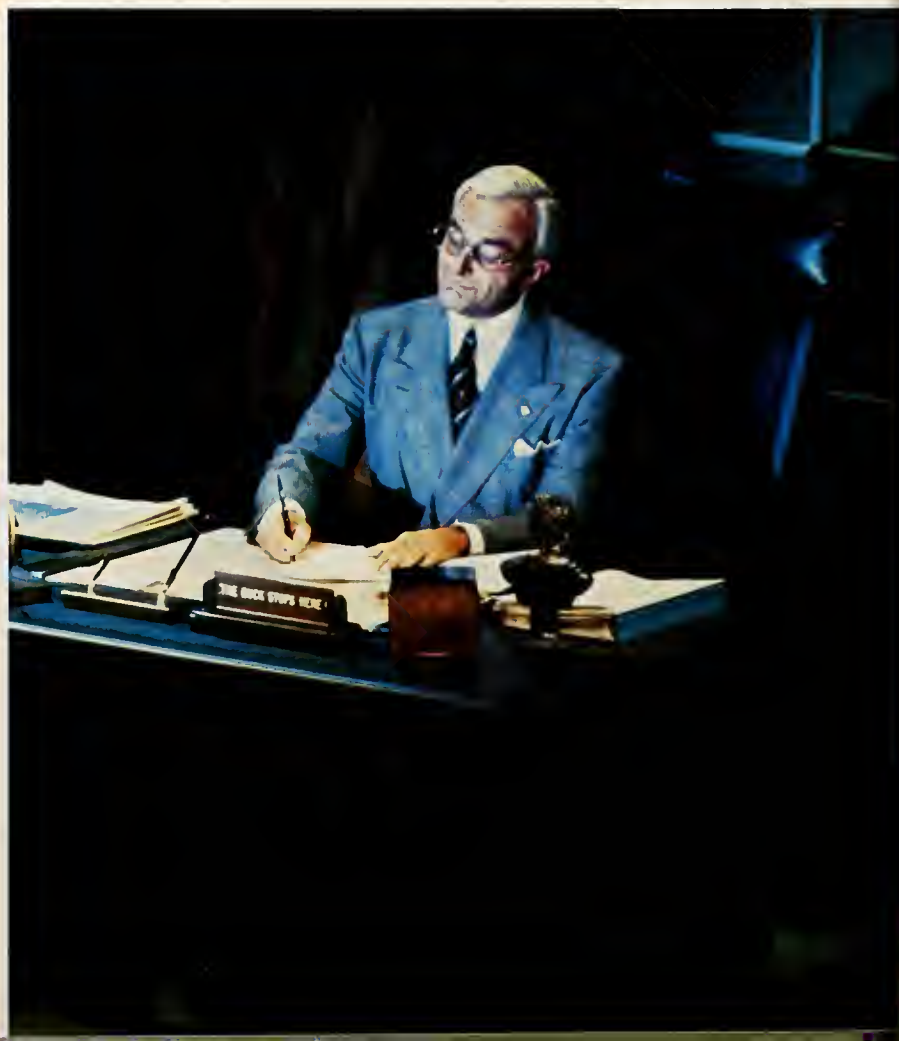

1974-75

EKU Centerboard conducted a glittering 1974-75 concert season, bringing to campus Jimmy Buffet, Rare Earth, Doc Severinsen, Mac Davis, Ann Murray, Kris Kristofferson and Rita Coolidge. Rock and pop concerts weren't all Centerboard had to offer; Pat Paulsen, guitarist Carlos Montoya and harpist Gerald Goodman also visited Eastern.

1975-76

Bob Martin ain't no president.
He's a construction engineer.
—Julian Carroll

In the 1975-76 year Eastern joined the nation in celebration of the Bicentennial. On November 8, 1975 nearly 2000 students joined hands to circle the University campus in a demonstration of campus unity and as a symbol of national unity. Other Bicentennial events included Ed Nelson's one-man show "GIVE 'EM HELL HARRY!," and a university production of "A HISTORICAL EVENING OF MUSIC, SONG AND DANCE FROM COLONIAL AMERICA."

Also in 1975 the Law Enforcement Building was completed, and In August the College of Law Enforcement moved in.

But the big news of this year was the announcement by President Martin of his retirement. At his inaugural address in 1960, Martin spoke of his "Vision of Greatness" for Eastern, and during his 16-year tenure, Martin realized his dream: the physical plant of the university, valued at $7 million in 1960, expanded to a worth of over $124 million by 1976. And these physical improvements were matched by academic expansion; 200 degree options were available in 1976, almost ten times the number available at the time of Martin's inauguration.

Governor Julian Carrol summed up Martin's tenure as president at the "Robert R. Martin Tribute Dinner," when he said, "Bob Martin ain't no president, he's a construction engineer."

1976-77

J. C. Powell took office as Eastern's seventh president on October 1, 1976. He inherited the reality of Robert Martin's vision, and pledged to keep it a reality: "Eastern's position as a nationally recognized public university is one which I would jealously guard and seek to enhance," he said at his inauguration. But Powell asked people not to expect a "carbon copy" or Robert Martin, and to realize that he would operate with his own style.

The football Colonels recaptured the OVC crown, which had been lost to Western in 1975. With their 6-1 conference record, Eastern earned the right to host the first round of the Division II play-offs. The home advantage didn't help though; the Colonels fell to North Dakota State 10-7.

1977-78

Telford Hall was the scene of a near disaster in January of 1977 when a fire that began in a tenth floor room started spreading. Smoke billowed out of the dorm making an eerie scene in the glare of streetlights, while fire trucks sat useless, their ladders unable to reach high enough to fight the blaze. But the fire seemed to bring out the best in the students: the women of Telford evacuated calmly, and once outside they found many helping hands. Female students offered extra clothes and rooms for the nights, while men set up mattresses in Alumni coliseum for those unable to find shelter. Injuries and damages in the fire were minor, thanks to quick thinking by those involved.

The 1977-78 basketball season brought the revival of one of the most exciting aspects of the game — the dunk. And the Colonels showed they could dunk with anyone, stuffing an average of five times a game

. . . and in the 1978-79 season the dunk was a weapon in the Colonels' championship arsenal

1978-79

The basketball Colonels brought the OVC title back to Richmond for the first time since 1972, finishing the season with a 9-3 conference slate. Two of these losses were to arch-rival Western, but they were avenged in a thrilling (and controversial) OVC championship, which the Colonels won on two free-throws by Dave Tierney. Eastern then went on to lose to a tough Tennessee team in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

The football Colonels gained a milestone for Head Coach Roy Kidd, winning their 100th football game under his direction. An 8-2 record earned the team the number eight ranking in the final Division 1—AA poll.

And the women were not to be outdone; the women's gymnastic team, made up of mostly freshmen and sophomores finished with an 11-3 record, and finished 15th in the nation as they represented the university at the AIAW National Championships at Penn State.

Time goes you say? Ah, no!
Alas, Time stays, WE go.
— Austin Dobson.

A decade is a long time. But it goes by so fast. This may sound paradoxical, but then the nature of time is paradoxical. For example, thinking back ten years, 1970 doesn't seem so long ago, but thinking ahead ten years, 1990 seems so far away.

So the 70's went by quickly. Or maybe it was just at Eastern that they went by quickly, for the 70's were gentler with Eastern than they were with most places in our troubled world. We can only hope that when the 1990 Milestone looks back at the 80's that they will have been as gentle.

STUDENT LIFE
MATT DAVIES

It is an incandescent day. You're sitting on a millstone in the ravine fervently trying to remember the name of your high school teacher who "inspired" you to study the major you're now flunking out of.

Or perhaps you're sprawled on a millstone, catching the sun's rays and relaxing. You begin struggling with your conscience whether to go to your class and study high polymers or skip it and "study" nature in the ravine.

Did you ever wonder what those millstones were for?

The circular stones, resembling tiny tables, were used by millers to grind grain into flour. They would place the grain on the stone and pulverize it with other stones.

Thus, the millstones that were once eroded by grinding and crushing are now worn smooth by the many bodies that situate and resituate (they may have a history but we never said they were comfortable) themselves to enjoy the beautiful surroundings of the campus.

HOMECOMING: 79

'MEMORIES THAT WILL LAST FOREVER ...

October 20, Homecoming day, dawned beautifully, continuing Eastern's recent tradition of perfect weather for this special day. As they woke up and saw the day Eastern fans realized a classic football game was in store. What other kind of game could there be on a day like this?

But before the big game always come festivities: a parade, pretty girls, floats, returning alumni. The 1979 Homecoming fell nowhere short of expectations.

High school bands from across the state joined the Marching Maroons as they stepped down Lancaster Avenue and through downtown Richmond in a spectacular show of colors. In between the bands, floats of all description rolled by; floats which fraternities, sororities and other groups had spent long hours (many during mid-term week) to put finishing touches on.

The highlight of the parade was the appearance of the fifteen finalists for homecoming queen. Everyone in the crowd had his or her favorite among the finalists, and as soon as the parade had passed the crowd trekked to Hanger Stadium to find out who this year's Queen was.

Kelli Ellis was crowned as the 1979 homecoming queen, and the festivities came to an end — time for football.

MEMORIES ... CONTINUED,

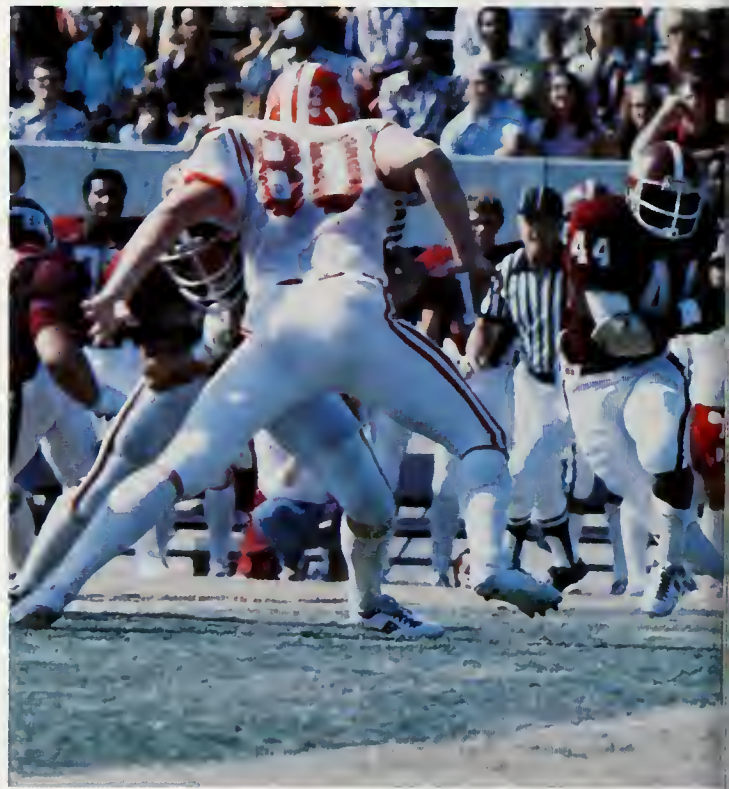

The mood of celebration carried over into the game as the Colonels scored a touchdown plus a two-point conversion their first time with the ball.

But the celebration wore down as every time after that Western's defense contained the Colonels. And the Hilltoppers offense had put a touchdown on the board to push the score to 8-6 for a fitting finish.

The weeks activities, expectations, and emotions all came to a peak as Western drove downfield for one last try at victory. With time running down the Hilltoppers opted for a field goal that would have won the game, had the Eastern defense not broken a man free to block an attempt with a desperate lunge.

A classic game — the only way to end a special Homecoming weekend.

Wild and Crazy Greeks

How far can you spit a watermelon seed? How many golf balls can you dig out of a mud pit? Can you chug a gallon of apple cider with no visible side effects?

If you were capable of craziness, then you were probably a member of a fraternity or sorority. Greek life afforded an outlet from the everyday routine of classes for ECU students.

Sororities and fraternities also gave independent students a chance to get away from those book reports and tests looming over their heads by competing or participating in Greek-sponsored events on campus.

For example, both fraternities and sororities were involved in the Lambda Chi Fraternity Watermelon Bust. The annual watermelon extravaganza, held in September, was a non-profit attempt by the Lambda Chi's to include as many ECU students as possible.

A kick-off party, which was open to all students, was held at Pier 99 in Lexington, precluding the activities. Events in the Bust included a seed-spitting contest, a greased watermelon roll, and a melon-eating contest. Another big event required finding a melon in a haystack. The Lambda Chi's sponsored a dance that evening, crowning a Watermelon Bust Queen.

Another annual event was the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity County Fair. Both sororities and fraternities participated in the festivities. The Fair was also just to bring Greeks together, not for a financial gain.

Each organization contributed ideas for a booth and events in the Fair. Trophies were awarded to the best booth and to the winners of the competitions. Alpha Gamma Sorority won the first place overall, scoring high in such events as the Apple Cider Chug, Wendy's Double-Eating Contest, the Cigarette Roll, and arm wrestling.

Kappa Alpha Fraternity commemorated Robert E. Lee and the fraternity's ideals with its annual Old South Week, held in the spring. Sororities competed in on-campus events like Old South Olympics, a Tug-of-War, a Wheelbarrow Race, and a relay of dig golf balls out of a mud pit.

The winning sorority received a free mixer with the fraternity and a Sharecropper Queen was crowned from one of the organizations.

Proceeds from Derby Week, sponsored by Sigma Chi Fraternity, went to their national philanthropy. Sororities participated in activities such as the Zipper Stripper Contest (where girls changed clothes inside a zipped sleeping bag), a greased pig contest, and a Beach Ball Race. Sigma Chi's also held a talent show and crowned Becky Sammons, a Chi Omega Sorority member, Derby Queen.

The main event, though, was the Derby race, celebrating the theme "Not Just Another Derby!" Girls chased fraternity members to get their hats and each hat was worth points towards their organization's overall score. Chi Omega Sorority took top honors in Derby Week.

Greek life had a serious side, too, which was evidenced in sorority Formal Rush. Rush Week had been changed from previous years to the week of registration to eliminate conflicts with classes.

Formal Rush counselors were assigned to any girl wishing to pledge a sorority.

The sorority these counselors belonged to was kept secret, so as not to influence the girl's decision. Counselors had to apply for the position and appear before a board to be chosen, as the job was not an easy one.

Three rounds of parties were given during Rush Week, the first two of these focusing on getting to know the pledges.

Sororities displayed their philanthropies, symbols, and ideals in the first party. The second party had a theme, which told the rushees what the sorority was all about.

Preference, or the third parties, were the formal activity of the week. This was the serious time when girls had to make a choice between organizations. It was a tough decision; every sorority involved different people and ideas.

Greek life at ECU offered fun and activities for Greeks as well as independents; it was a time for students to get together and get acquainted in something other than classes.

T-Shirts ... Today's' Billboard

Beginning with his first grunting attempts at speech, man, throughout history, has sought for ways to communicate. He progressed from monosyllables to more complicated speech. Then long-distance communication became desirable, and smoke signals and drums answered the need.

Books followed, communicating ideas over great distances of space and time. But they lacked immediacy, and during the industrial revolution came more refinements: telegraph, teletype, telephone, television and tell-a-woman: the most efficient.

But in the 70's an inexpensive, low-energy consuming, very personal, form of communication emerged: the T-shirt. America became a nation of walking billboards as T-shirts advertised & persuaded. They put forth ideas. They opened conversation, giving anyone who could read clues about the personality and preference of the wearer.

These T-shirts below, and countless others brought colorful communications to Eastern in the 70's.

Gene Cotton and his group, American Aces, opened the University's "Star Series" with a different concert than his audience expected; still the Brock Auditorium crowd was an appreciative one.

Cotton's music has focused on everything from country to rock to bluegrass and he had some selections from each during his concert.

Cotton played many of his hit songs including "Don't You Let My Heart Know When You're Leaving" and he also played "Let Your Love Flow" which he wrote but which another artist made popular.

Cotton's diverse range of selections, supported by the strong work of his background group and his powerful lyrics, got the 1979 Star Series off to a successful start.

ABOVE: Gene Cotton strikes a thoughtful pose as he performs "Don't You Let My Heart Know You're Leaving" for his audience in Brock Auditorium. RIGHT: Two different moods of Gene Cotton are caught in this double exposure print. Cotton's diverse musical talents made for an exciting show.

Sir Harold Wilson delighted a capacity audience in Brock Auditorium with his sharp wit and incisive insight to the current events of today.

Wilson served as Prime Minister of England from 1964-67 and again from 1974-76, which made him the longest serving Prime Minister in the 20th century. But this political career dates before World War II, and so his comments on the current world situation carried the weight of nearly 40 years of experience at the highest level of politics.

And he spiced these comments with his wry sense of humor making an eventful evening out of a sometimes dry subject.

The Louisville Ballet Company continued the University's Star Series on September 25th performing a number of selections for a standing room only crowd.

This professional troupe has danced with the likes of Mikhail Baryshnikov, Cynthia Gregory and Patricia McBride as well as performing some of the classic works of dance ever choreographed.

In increasing attempts to develop its repertoire, the company performed selections from "Aurora's Wedding," "Schumann Quartet," "Connotations" and "Lifeline" on this stop of their 1979 tour.

☆ STAR SERIES ☆ RED RYDER ☆ STAR SERIES ☆

Eastern's theatre department contributed to the Star Series with their first production of the 1979-80 season as they performed Mark Medoff's "When You Comin' Back Red Ryder?" on October 4, 5, and 6th.

The play is set in a small New Mexico diner in 1968 and the plot revolves around the Vietnam war and how the characters deal with their inner self, life's problems and the future.

"When You Comin' Back Red Ryder?" is a melodramatic, suspenseful tale of the interaction between people and was a fine start to the drama season at Eastern.

Hard driving rock and roll with an exciting new twist — double grand pianos was what Carnegie brought to the Star Series as they performed in Brock Auditorium on October 9th.

Twin brothers Mark and Clark Seymours' keyboard work provided a unique accent to the usual bass, guitar and drums of most groups and songs like "Nightbird" and "The Old Red Piano" were warmly appreciated by the small but vocal crowd.

Carnegie has been highly successful in Europe and is just now becoming popular in the U.S. and that was evident by the enthusiastic response the group received throughout the show.

"I sing because it's an expression of my soul." Josh White Jr. told his audience as he performed in Brock Auditorium as part of the year's Star Series on October 15th.

White's dazzling musical style combined with his dreamy storybook monologues gave song like "Tobacco Road" and "Bojangles" a hypnotic effect over the crowd.

"Everyone can be touched if we find the right song," said White and his diversified style of rock, gospel and folk music surely touched his audience at Eastern.

Mixing their famous country sound with some new style rock and roll, Pure Prairie League vibrated Brock Auditorium with the first "big" concert of Star Series.

The band has mastured into one of the top groups of today and the numerous fine songs they played off their album "Don't Hold Back" was evidence of that development.

But the crowd came to hear many of the old favorites and when the group finally played their big hits "Two Lane Highway" and "Amie," the crowd showed its appreciation with a standing ovation.

Pure Frairie League's style of country-rock made the first major concert a big success.

The second major concert of the Star Series brought the exciting disco sounds to Brock Auditorium as Kool and the Gang boogied the crowd with their moving musical numbers.

The band has been together since the mid-70's and has developed a loyal following of fans all across the country and that was obvious by the crowd they played to in Brock Auditorium.

The driving, moving disco songs had the audience on their feet dancing over much of the concert, and when Kool and the Gang broke into their big hits, "Ladies Night", "Hollywood Swingin'" and "Jungle Boogie" the fans responded with loud and deserved ovations.

One of America's foremost ventriloquists, Willie Tyler and his dummy Lester, appeared in Brock Auditorium as part of the University's Star Series, opening for the Kool and the Gang concert on October 17th.

Tyler has appeared on the "Tonight Show" as well as the "Mike Douglas Show" and has recently worked in the movie "Coming Home" with Jane Fonda and Jon Voight.

Tyler has also done many commercials and appeared on many of the Las Vegas nightclubs, performing his own compositions which he writes himself.

"I got into comedy because I failed at everything else I tried." Garry Marshall told a capacity Brock Auditorium audience as part of the University's Star Series on November 5th.

Although Marshall majored in journalism in college, he soon turned to television where he established himself as one of the top producers of today with such shows as "Happy Days", "Mork and Mindy" and "Laverne and Shirley".

Marshall talked about the many hours of work it takes to create a television show and showed some outtakes from some of his shows, which the auditorium crowd thoroughly enjoyed.

On November 7th, nearly 4,000 fans packed Alumni Coliseum to hear the sweet jazz sounds of Chuck Mangione.

Playing his famous fluglehorn, Mangione treated the crowd to many of his famous songs, "Chase the Clouds Away", "Children of Sanchez", and of course, "Feels so Good."

In 1979, Mangione has won the Jazz artist of the Year award in addition to winning two Grammy awards. Mangione's backup group provided a brilliant background for the dreamy music of Mangione's fluglehorn and the crowd sowed its appreciation of the performance with ovation after ovation.

Chuck Mangione is one of the top touring acts in the world today and his concert at Easter gave the audience something that they will long remember.

The second production of the Eastern theatre department brought Herman Gressieker's "Royal Gambit" to the Gifford theatre stage.

The play takes place during the 16th century, under the rule of Henry VIII, and it deals with Henry as a representative of the contemporary modern man.

The usual aspect about the play is, although it takes place in the famous Tudor period in England, the dialogue and interactions between the characters deals with typical, everyday problems, which made "Royal Gambit" an exciting addition to the theatre's 79-80 season.

The Comedia Dell'Arte theatre was revived by a troupe of nine Eastern actors in the play "A Company of Wayward Saints" in the Gifford theatre on February 13, 14 and 15th.

Comedia Dell'Arte was an improvisational type of theatre popular in the 1500's, but its form was especially adaptable to the scene the troupe is asked to play out by a wealthy "patron" in the audience. That scene — the history of man.

The troupe nearly breaks up trying to accomplish this task; gripes and jealousies get in the way of their ability. "We have lost the art," moans the leader of the troupe, played by James Christian.

But the troupe reassembles and is able to do the history of man in three poignant skits: Birth, Adolescence and Death. And in accomplishing this they regain their art.

"The best friend that

Congressman Carl D. Perkins was called "The best friend that education has in Congress," by several speakers at last November's dedication of the building that bears his name. Congressman Perkins is Kentucky's senior representative in Congress, being elected by the seventh district to serve 16 terms.

The Perkins Building will house most of the activities of the ECU Office of Public Service and Special Programs; it also has facilities for the University's two computing services, for television and radio stations, and the J.T. Dorris Museum. And the nice thing about the building said then governor Julian Carroll, "is that it is paid for."

OPEN HOUSE

Open House at ECU provided rest for the weary. For the ladies who had grown tired of smuggling men up to their rooms through the air-conditioning vents, open house allowed them to "openly" have guests. And the men who wished to be with their loves no longer had to conceal them in large Domino's Pizza boxes until safely out of sight of the dorm director.

Each designated night, the cheerful, always congenial deskworkers took your little I. D. into bondage, holding it for ransom lest you forget to return from your date's room. And most remembered, perhaps, was the $10 cost for replacing an I. D. was greater than your undying love.

The actual open house period was fun as well as serious. Students conversed on such vast subjects as "How to turn the TV on," "How to turn the TV off," and "The contents of the refrigerator."

But suddenly, in the midst of those good times, the phone would ring, signalling you had used up your allotted 3 or 5 hours. It was the desk calling, pleasantly advising you to be at the desk in five seconds, or the proverbial "jig was up" and the military would be summoned.

Ladies, no matter that your man was just about to ask you to marry him and have his 2.2 children. Or men, forget that she was about to offer you a lucrative position in her father's firm with a salary that would keep you in socks and underwear for life.

As you and your true love whispered good-night, your eyes became misty. This emotional state was not due to a reluctance to part with your date, but rather from the tear gas the military was lobbing through the window.

Open house, romance at its finest.

There are different ways of being a good football team. Coaches can follow the Green Bay Packer/Pittsburgh Steeler formula of putting superior men at every position, and then letting those superior men run amok over opponents. That is the best route for a coach blessed with the personnel for it.

But the Eastern Kentucky Colonels had to prove their greatness in another way, by surviving, enduring, waiting for opportunities and finding the man to seize those opportunities; they endured until they were the final survivors in the Division 1-AA football wars, until they were national champions.

Remember their season: The intense struggle with arch-rival Western that ended in Eastern's favor only after Danny Martin racing untouched towards Western's field goal kicker, lunged to block the kick and preserve the 8-6 victory. . . Eastern reeling from Nevada-Reno's brilliant 20-point come-back in the first playoff game, rallying themselves to break Joe Richard through the line to knock down the extra point that would have won the game for Reno. . . then, in that same game, the Colonels outlasting the Wolfpack to take a torturous 33-30 overtime win on David Flores 17-yard field goal. . .

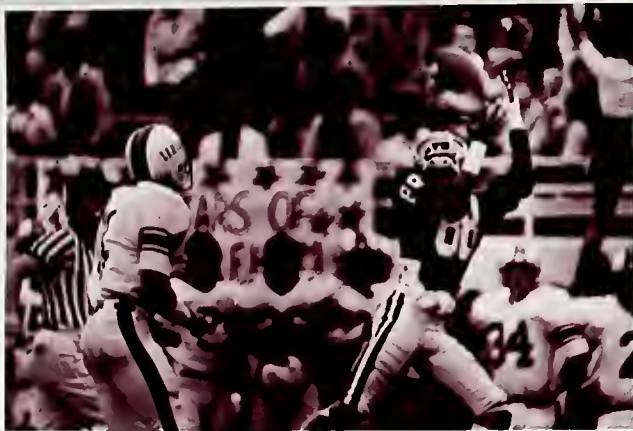

It was an extraordinary season for a special team — that much is obvious. Not so obvious is what made them a special team.

When the 38 I-AA football teams gathered for spring practice, each player must have had dreams of playoff games. Thirty-eight coaches nurtured those dreams, using them to drive their players, to make those players reach inside themselves and find what it takes to make a truly extraordinary team. Why was it that Eastern succeeded? It was that number 68. Don McKinnon's number. Though only a freshman, McKinnon had a bright future ahead of him at Eastern, and his personality was one that immediately impressed those who met him. His sudden death stunned the Eastern players, most of whom heard the news after their return from spring break.

It was hard for them to get back to work, at first, but then they found a sense of purpose in the tragedy. They dedicated the 1979 season to McKinnon, wore his 68 on their helmets, and had the number painted in the end zones at Hanger Field to remind them of that purpose.

And so it was that a fine Lehigh football team never really had a chance against an Eastern team that had 12 men on the field at all times. That twelfth man had gotten the Colonels their opportunities all season long. And proving their greatness, the Colonels seized those opportunities and won the national championship for Don McKinnon.

Teams don't run against Lehigh. That's what the scouting reports told the Colonel coaches: don't run against Lehigh because you can't run against Lehigh.

But some football coaches can be hardheaded, as can their teams. Eastern didn't listen to the scouting reports; they ran.

Their first 20 plays they ran — for 72 yards and a touchdown. Forty-five more times they ran, for a total of 289 yards. They ran all over Lehigh and then they stopped running and did a little dance on the scouting reports.

And when the offense tired of running, the Colonel defense showed the number one defense in the nation — on paper — how to play defense, on the field instead of on the stats sheet. "We wanted to prove a point," said defensive tackle Rickie Rhodes, "that we have a defense too."

Prove it they did, holding the Engineers to 204 yards in total offense, grabbing five turnovers, and most important, allowing Lehigh only seven points.

On this day, Eastern was not to be denied, and the Colonels brought home the first national football championship ever for the state of Kentucky.

All the times that college seemed not worth it; all the times when the hassles made the goal hard to remember; all the times when it seemed that teachers, administrators and the great god of finance were conspiring to make sure that graduation was an impossibility — all those times were forgotten. That easily their memory disappeared, because it was Commencement Day.

December and June graduates passed another milestone on their graduation, the day they paused to remember and wonder. They knew what was behind them: four years of friends, studies, lovers and loneliness, boredom and excitement, and growing.

They could only guess at what was ahead of them. Tomorrow they would find out.

*Graduation :
A Day to Remember,
A Day to Wonder*

THE NEWS HIT HOME

It was an eventful year, not only at Eastern, but all over the world. The events which shook the world also shook the University, but some of them touched Eastern in a way they didn't effect the rest of the world.

The Iranian crisis, for example, was one "that reshaped nations" in the words of the Christian Science Monitor. But the crisis touched Eastern a bit more personally when it was learned that one of the six Americans that the Canadians so courageously smuggled out of Iran was Robert Anders, brother-in-law of Larry Westbrook, Assistant Director of Safety Services here at the University.

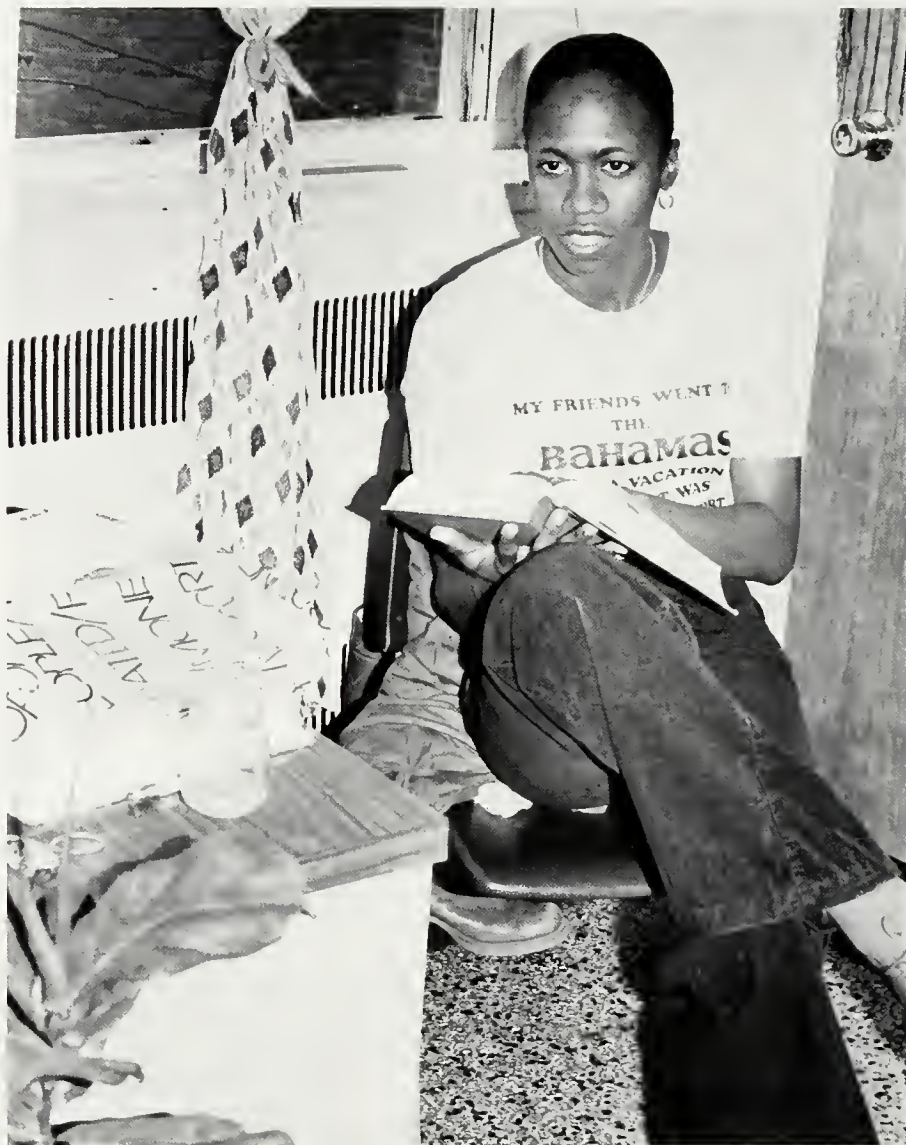

Even before the rescue the hostage situation provoked an angry reaction from Eastern students. Some were genuinely concerned. Others showed their true redneck origins, as signs claiming "We Love the Shah" and "Camel Jockies Go Home" dotted the campus. One of the really sad things about the crisis was that sentiments and actions of this sort were lumped under the category of patriotism.

Thinking one crisis at a time to not be enough to amuse the world, the Soviet Union touched off another by their brutal invasion of Afghanistan. And this event affected Eastern students by reviving the spectre of the draft; President Carter called for the reinstatement of draft registration for all people ages 19 and 20 and also proposed that women be made eligible.

In protest, Carter also called for a boycott of the Moscow Olympics, something which again touched Eastern personally: Andrea Taylor of Eastern's women's track team may miss her chance to run in the Olympics if her native Trinidad backs Carter's boycott action.

The sharply rising price of gold was bound to affect students, traditionally a group whose economic status ranges from almost broke, to broke, to in debt. The inflation rise the gold prices encouraged was something Eastern students had grown used to, along with the rest of the nation. But its impact was more noticeable when students went to buy their class rings, and because of the depressed economic state of the students, they were sore tempted by the ads run in the Progress offering to buy old high school rings.

Eastern's suitcases were hit hard by the gas crisis, part two. Iranian oil, of course, stopped coming completely; oil from other sources soared over a dollar a gallon, and the poor suitcases found themselves with the thoughts of maybe having to stay on campus for a weekend or two.

People like to tell students sometimes, that a college campus is a sheltered community, that pretty soon students will have to go into the "real world". But they've been telling students that ever since grade school: soon they'd graduate into the "real world" of high school, and then in high school, college became the real world. Once in college students find the "real world" to be another step away.

But the "real world" didn't wait for us to make that step this year — It came to us.

John Y. Brown Jr. Installed as Governor

In December 1979, Phyllis George Brown became the first lady of Kentucky. In a related incident, her husband, John Y. Brown Jr. was inaugurated as governor of the state .

Brown's election in November capped a storybook (complete with the beautiful princess) campaign — a campaign which seemed to begin with his marriage to Phyllis George in March of 1979. Shortly after that Brown entered the already confusing, hotly competitive Democratic gubernatorial primary.

In less than two months, Brown won the nomination which other candidates had been seeking for more than a year. With his highly organized campaign, and his bottomless wallet Brown accomplished what most political observers in the state said was impossible to do in only two months.

Brown then found himself embroiled in an old-style Kentucky gubernatorial race with former governor Louie B. Nunn. Brown's high geared electronic campaign triumphed by nearly 20 percent in the general election.

Robert B. Begley

A man who mastered life with great dignity, he served the University with honor as a member of the Board of Regents for 12 years, including five as Chairman. A business leader, he developed and directed one of the nation's most respected pharmaceutical divisions. A community leader, he placed his church, his work, and his family first in his order of priorities; and a devoted family man, he made that role with a special sense of grace and dedication. He was indeed a model man, and his life's many facets and with humility made them into a graceful blend of human endeavor.

Regent's Regroup After Begley's Death

The death of Chairman Robert B. Begley in January prompted the election of Charles Combs to the chairmanship of the Board of Regents. Begley's son, Robert J. Begley, was appointed to finish his father's term.

The Board created two committees this year, one to hear student disciplinary board appeals, and a budget committee to maintain a liaison with the University on budget priorities and preparations.

And the Board approved the University's biennial operating budget for the 1980-81 academic year.

There are two sides to President J. C. Powell — his business and his social side, and while the business side may seem more important, both are necessary to his job.

As head of the University, President Powell and his wife, Downie, undertook a busy schedule in representing the University at a number of social functions during the year, locally and across the country. They were in Orlando, Florida when the Colonels took the national championship; they were at various luncheons and banquets for campus and community groups; and they took their annual tour to attend Alumni Association Chapter meetings.

On the business side, efforts to improve the quality of University's program and the management of University affairs were the goals of President Powell in his third full year in office.

J. C. POWELL

The improvement of University programs was couched in the framework of a new academic organization developed during 1978-79 and implanted this academic year. Concurrent with this new alignment was the allocation in each of the nine colleges of funds earmarked for the improvement of instruction.

The reallocation of existing resources to meet the changing needs of this institution was the major challenge in the management area. While the resources and the number of students and faculty remained relatively level, the needs within the institution were far from static. While some programs declined in enrollment, others grew, requiring the shifting of funds and faculty positions.

President Powell closely followed the work of faculty committees at work in the areas of faculty and administration evaluation.

President Powell was granted his first full four-year contract last year, and it became effective July 1st. His initial appointment was to fill the remaining two years and eight months of President-emeritus Robert R. Martin's unexpired term.

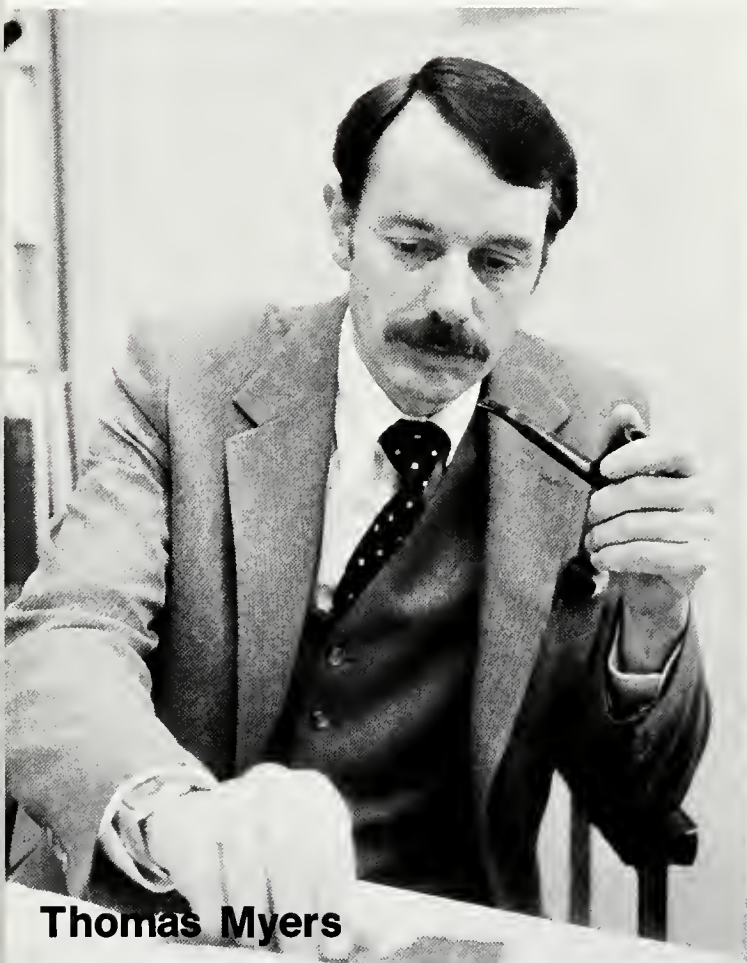

An Eastern

Man Still

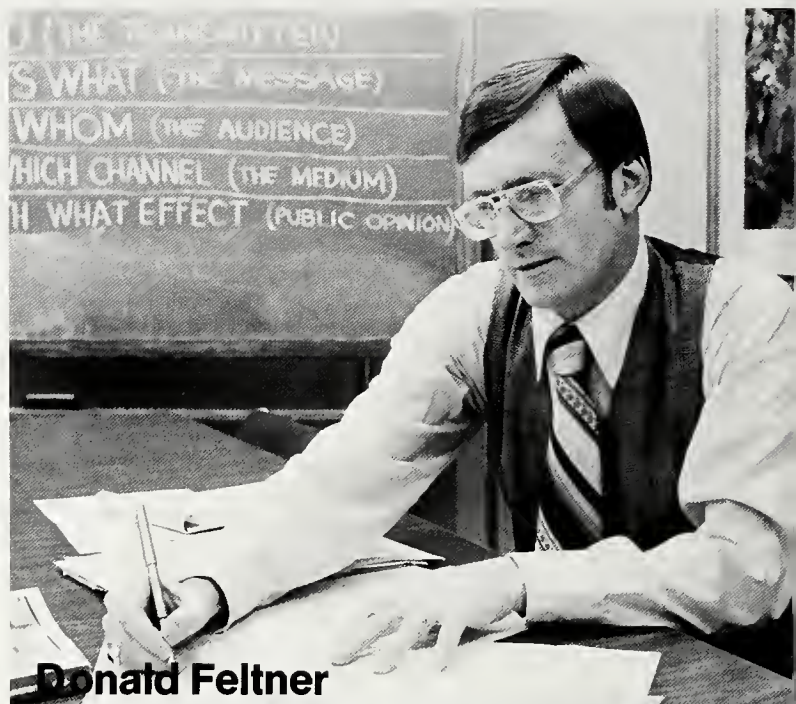

Even as he debated the issues that affected his fellow Kentuckians, President-emeritus Robert R. Martin remained an Eastern man. After the Colonel's Division I-AA football championship this year, it was Martin who introduced a senate resolution on the first day of the 1980 Kentucky legislative assembly to honor the team and the coaches.

When Dr. Martin retired as Eastern's sixth president in 1976, he did not take up the usual activities reserved for those who have earned some leisure time — Martin's energy shortly found another outlet in the Kentucky State Senate, as he was elected as the representative from the 22nd district.

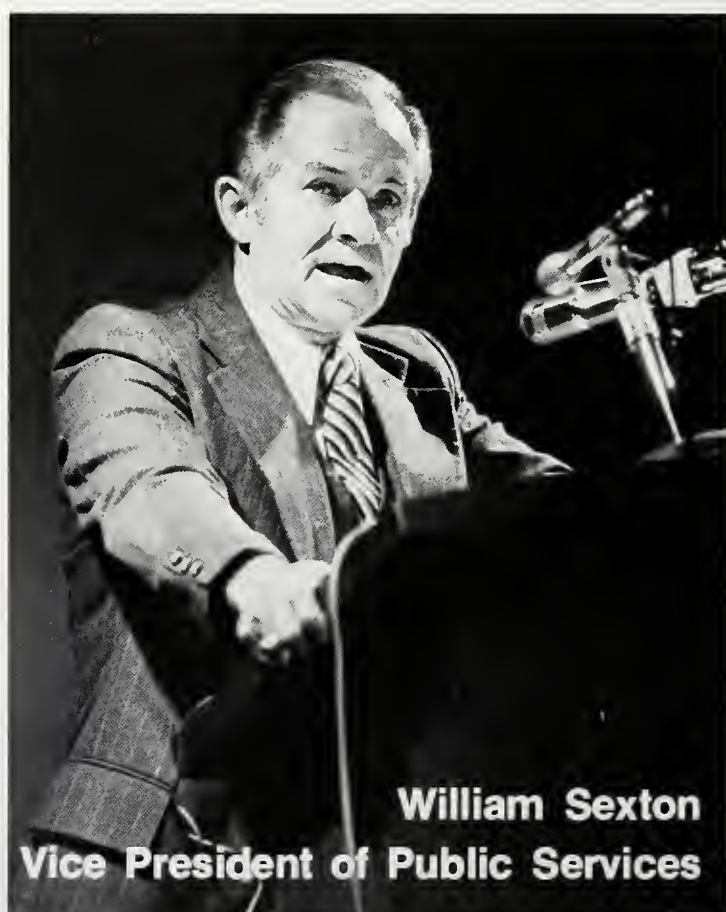

When he's not in Frankfort, Dr. Martin and the former first lady often attend campus functions as they continue to keep in touch with the institution they serve so well. And when the hectic days in Frankfort end with the dismissal of the legislature, Dr. Martin returns to his home overlooking the campus which continues to benefit from his Vision of Greatness . . . where his name is still synonymous with Eastern Kentucky University.

The Office of Academic Affairs and Research, under Vice President John Rowlett, is responsible for registration, class schedules, and curriculum changes here at the University.

Neal Donaldson retired as Vice President of Business Affairs and Earl Baldwin replaced him. Baldwin's office oversees all business and logistical services of the University.

Vice President Donald Feltner's Office of Public Affairs oversees programs that are involved with the recruiting process of Eastern students until they return as alumni. The Division of University-School Relations recruits high school students; the Division of Public Information keeps the University community aware of campus events; and the Division of Career Development and Placement helps to place graduates in jobs.

The Office of Public Services and Special Programs, under Vice President William Sexton, moved into the newly finished Perkins Building. Dr. Sexton's office oversees the activities of the Division of Television and Radio, the Administrative and Academic Computing Services and the University Archives.

As Vice President of Student Affairs, Dr. Thomas Myers finds himself at the top of a pyramid which includes the Office of Admissions, the Deans of Men and Women, Housing, Student Organizations and Activities, Financial Assistance and the Health Service.

Learning the art of healing

An ART serves as a specially trained assistant in registered record administration.

The Occupational Therapy program, under chairman Dorothy Jeffrey is a four-year course of study culminating in field experience. Upon the completion of this practical experience, the student is eligible to sit for the National Certification Examination of the Occupational Therapy Association and the American Medical Association.

The curriculum combines both general and specialized education in the field of Medical Assisting. Introduction includes both formal class work and directed practical experience in hospitals, physicians' offices, child care agencies and other health care settings.

The Medical Technology Department offers three clinical laboratory programs: a four-year program with an upper division major in which students can follow a well established progression of clinical training complementary to the medical technology theory courses; a three-plus-one program where students follow a planned curricular pattern for three years on campus plus one year of practical clinical training in a hospital; and a two-year Medical Laboratory Technician program intended for the student who is interested in working with clinical analytical diagnosis, or research and technological laboratory agencies.

The primary goal of the College of Allied Health and Nursing, under Dean David G. Gale, is to provide opportunities for the students to develop their potential, and to provide a learning environment that will prepare effective practitioners for services, teaching or research.

The University maintains formal contracts with many health care agencies located throughout Kentucky in order to provide its students with quality experience.

The Baccalaureate Degree and the Associate Degree in Nursing are both accredited by the National League for Nursing. Graduates of either program who successfully write the State Board Examination are licensed to practice as Registered Nurses. The Department of Baccalaureate Degree Nursing has as its focus the development of the nurse generalist who has the preparatory basis for further study in professional nursing; the Department of Associate Degree Nursing program trains students to utilize the nursing process to assist individuals and families in meeting their physical, spiritual and social needs.

The Department of Environmental Health Science prepares the student in the identification, analysis and control of health hazards in man's environment.

Three levels of education are offered in the Emergency Medical Care program: Basic Emergency Medical Technician (EMT), Advanced EMT, and Associate of Science in Medical Care. The program prepares students to perform procedures under the general supervision of a licensed physician.

Under coordinator Elaine Caldwell, Health Records Technicians are required to successfully complete the technical phase of the curriculum; then they take the National Accreditation Examination to become an Accredited Record Technician.

This management-oriented college, The college of Applied Arts and Technology, strives to produce qualified businessmen for several occupations. Dean Kenneth S. Hanson stated that the CO-OP training programs are a big part of the educational development of the student's education. He emphasized the importance of work experience and also pointed out that although the idea of practicum is a relatively new concept it is continuing to grow rapidly.

The college added a new area of study to its curriculum, Military Science. The military program, led by Colonel Hollis L. Roberts, provides courses that "develop skills in responsibility and leadership." This area of study has not been accredited as such, but the program enables a student to enter the U.S. Army as a commissioned lieutenant. The department also gives interested students an opportunity to take advanced courses and acquire a minor in Military Science.

Another department that utilizes the practicum-work experience concept is the Department of Agriculture. The technical agriculture program at Eastern, under the direction of chairperson Dr. Dwight G. Barkley, "leans more to the applied concepts of agriculture than the land-grant programs of other colleges." The department requires cooperative education through experiences gained by working on the various practicum facilities.

The Home Economics Department, supervised by Dr. Betty Powers, also uses special facilities. The degrees in this area range from a Bachelor of Science degree in Child and Family Studies, General Dietetics, Home Economics, Fashion Merchandising, Textiles, Nutrition and Interior Design. The pupils majoring in Child Care use the Child Development Center, located in the Burrier Building, and Model School, for observational studies.

Eastern's Mass Communication Department is in the process of moving their radio and television stations from the Donovan Building to the new Perkins Building. Under chairperson James S. Harris, the department has three general areas of study: Journalism, Broadcasting and Public Relations. All the courses in communications teach the students to "market ideas through the media."

Chairperson Dr. Clyde Craft heads the Industrial Education and Technology Department. This management oriented technical department has several two and four year programs that prepare the individual for three basic occupations: supervisory positions in manufacturing industries, industrial arts teaching positions and specialized vocational teachers.

The curriculum includes such programs as metal technology, drafting, wood technology, printing technology, and broadcast engineering. There are four areas of electronics: industry, computer, broadcast and power. The department offers courses in occupational health and safety; although the program is not fully developed, it is growing steadily. Construction Technology is a new program in this department and will have its first graduates in May of 1980.

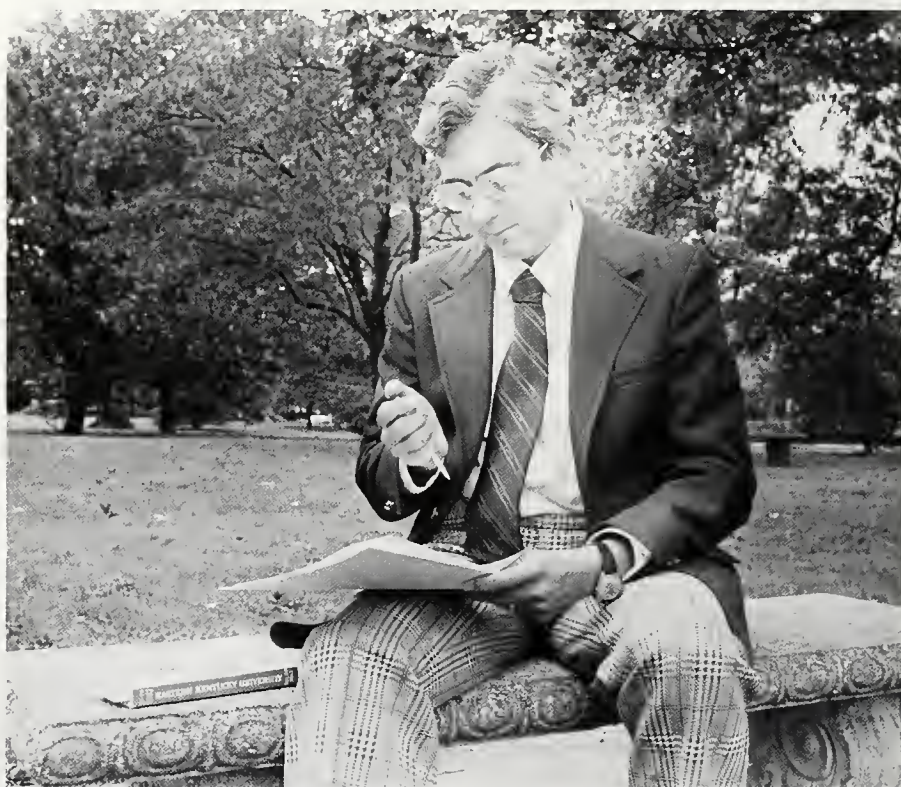

Creativity and Intellect

Dean John M. Long of the College of Arts and Humanities said that the college deals with "human creativity and intellect." The college develops a knowledge of free expression, and it teaches a broad understanding of creative accomplishments of both the past and the present. Most of the departments are concerned with "strengthening styles of expression through performance."

The Department of Philosophy and Religion, chaired by Dr. Robert Miller, offers a Bachelor of Arts degree in philosophy and a minor in religion. This department gives students a chance "to analyze and think, thus developing their basic attitude towards life."

Dr. Robert Burkhart heads the Department of English. This department strengthens the essential language skills of The Foreign Language Department under Dr. Charles Nelson, has teaching and non-teaching opportunities. The department offers a Bachelor of Arts degree in five languages: French, German, Russian, Spanish and Ibero-American studies. The courses help a student express himself in a foreign language, place or culture.

The Department of Humanities educates a student with an "intergrated use of the various arts". Under the direction of Dr. Anne Brooks, the department offers no degrees but does offer basic humanistic courses.

The Art Department, under Daniel Schindelbower, offers a Bachelor of Arts degree in the creative study of fine arts, design, and art education. The department also has specialized programs in ceramics, jewelry, painting, printmaking and sculpture, which lead to an art degree.

The Department of Music stresses creativity and expression through performance. The department, chaired by Dr. George Muns, has degrees ranging from Baccalaureate performance to church music, Music Educa-

Dr. Richard Benson heads the Speech and Theatre Arts Department; the department utilizes the idea of creative imagination through movement as well as speech. The department develops the skill of communicating with the entire body as well as words.

Business: Interest and Involvement

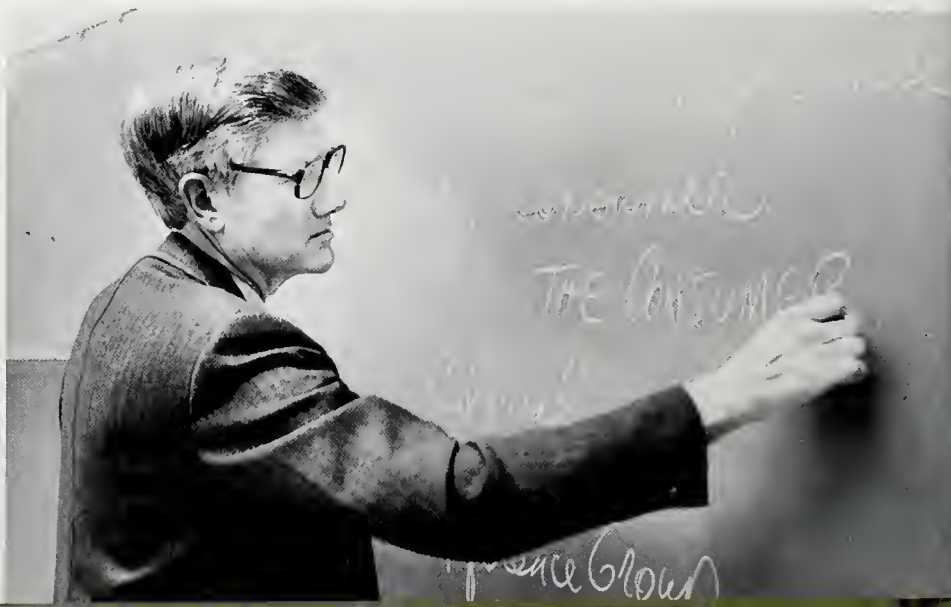

Continuing developments in the economy and growing demand for graduates have contributed to the popularity of the College of Business. With over 2,200 majors and 65 faculty members, the College of Business is the largest and fastest growing academic unit at Eastern.

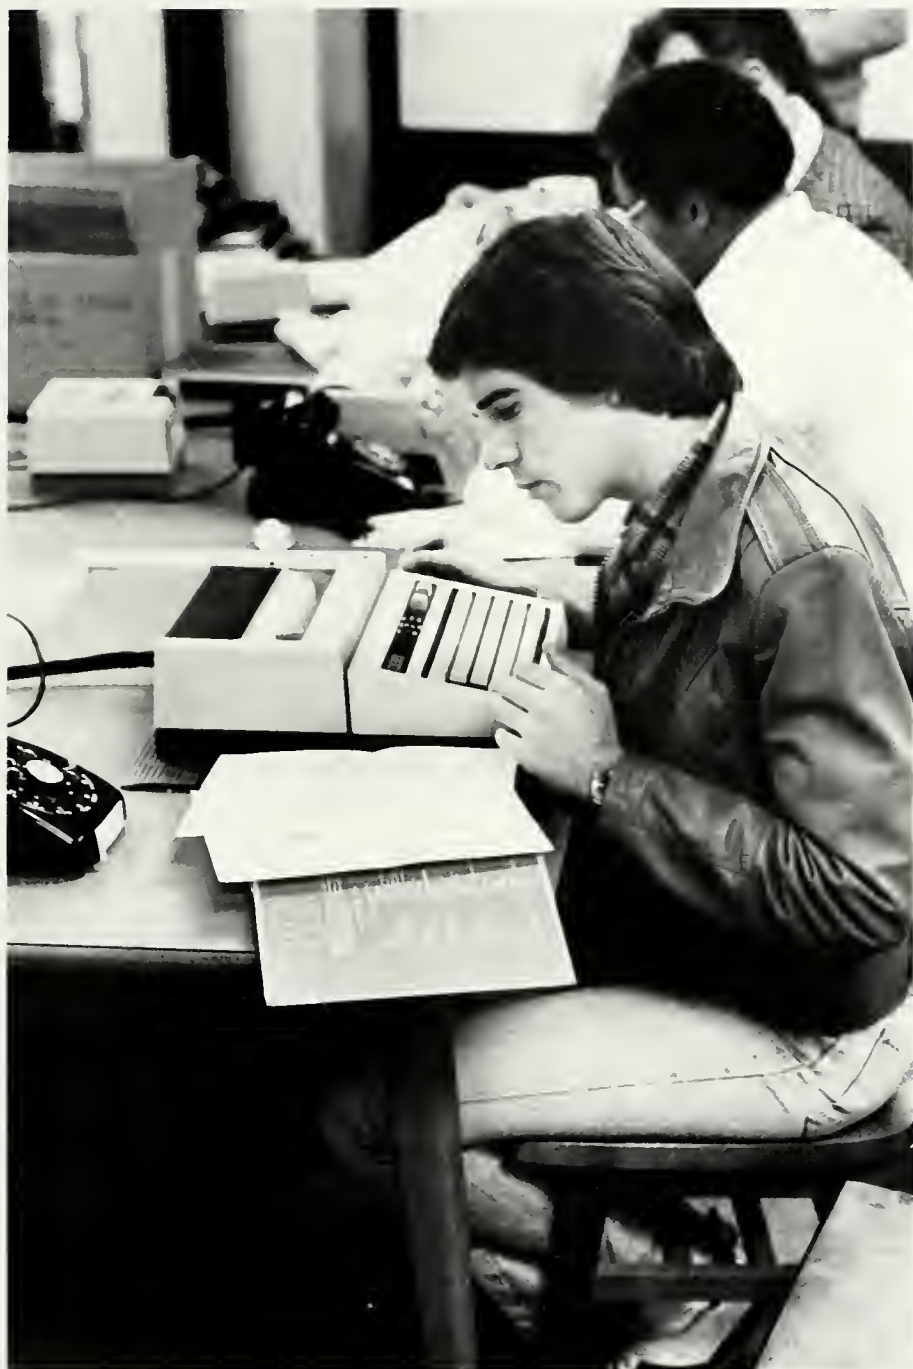

Administration in the college has succeeded in gaining the interest and involvement of local and regional industries in its programs. The Bluegrass Industrial Appreciation Day, sponsored by the C of B, is held in the spring of each year: Dean Howard Thompson is proud of the extensive co-op program in which students participate in job situations for academic credit. The college also receives benefits and endowments in the areas of Real Estate, Insurance, Accounting Transportation and Office Administration among others.

The Department of Accounting, chaired by Claude K. Smith, has found particular success in placing its graduates. The prestigious 'Big Eight' Accounting firms have found Eastern to be fertile ground for new employees and potential partners. The Accounting Department continues to grow in reputation and standing throughout the state.

One of the new courses being offered is, "Introduction to the Business of Thoroughbred Racing" taught by Dr. Robert Sharp, which represents the goal of the department to train students in a practical as well as a theoretical sense.

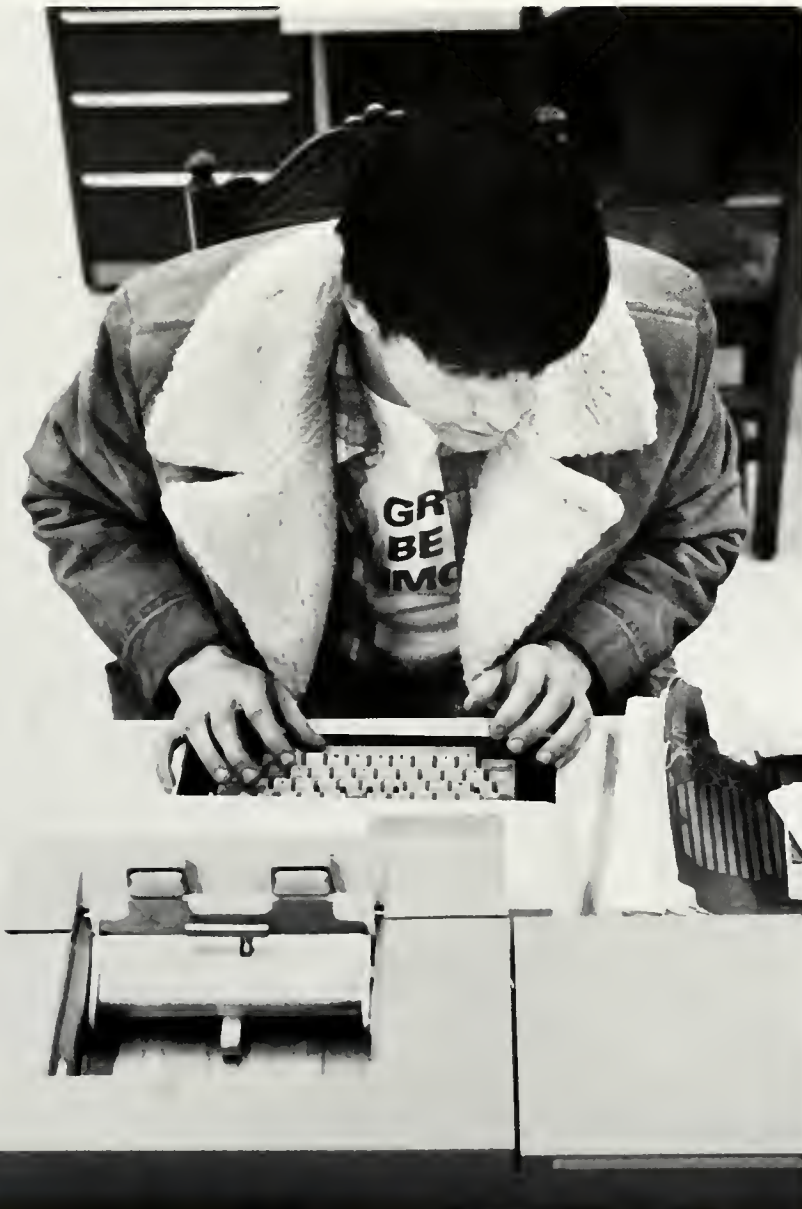

Dr. Stan King, Institute Co-ordinator, said the primary purpose of the Management Development and Studies Institute was to plan and organize special interest courses and seminars provided to the business men of this region by various departments of the college, "Unifying and improving of these services," King hopes to promote "the mutual exchange of ideas and methods between the campus and business world throughout the institute."

Working to Teach Others

Dean Dixon A. Barr is in the process of "reviewing and reorganizing" the College of Education. Barr says that this year-long study to reconstruct and specify the number of departments will benefit the administrative structure. The main purpose of the college is to prepare students for teaching and teaching-related positions in primary and secondary educational school systems.

The departments in education offer summer knowledge-enrichment programs for the "gifted and talented youth" and Eastern is one of the few schools in Kentucky with a practicum lab school. Model Lab School, directed by Principal S. Henderson and acting chairman Dr. Bruce Bonar, functions as a "humanistic learning center for early childhood through college level students." It provides educational experiences which prepare the participants for making realistic choices from the alternatives which a changing world presents." This lab school gives students a chance to "see the kids at work" and helps them in determining their individual teaching potentials.

The Department of Educational Foundations, with acting chairman Dr. Len Doak, is designed to prepare students for the "realistic views of teaching". The College of Education supervises this advanced form of practicum, with Dr. David L. Rush directing.

The Department of Elementary Education, chaired by Dr. Imogene Ramsey with the Department of Secondary and Higher Education, chaired by Dr. Carl E. Harley prepare students for teaching basic and specialized curricular. The degrees offered certify the students to instruct at certain grade levels from Kindergarten to the Twelfth grade.

The Department of Library Science, headed by Mrs. Juanita Phillips, "provides eligibility for provisional certification for school media librarians".

Dr. William I. David manages the Department of Special Education and Rehabilitation. This department trains for such jobs as special education teachers, speech pathologists, and rehabilitation counselors. "Programs are offered leading to baccalaureate degrees in three main areas of study: Special Education, Communication Disorders, and Rehabilitation Disorders," according to Dr. David.

The college of Education has two departments which educate students for public schools, the department of Educational Administration with acting chairman Dr. Walter Marcum and the Department of Psychology and Counseling with chairperson Lola Done. Educational Administration is for "those students who plan to become school superintendents, supervisors, principals and business administrators."

The College of Law Enforcement under Dean Robert W. Posey is comprised of the Departments of Correctional Services, Fire Prevention and Control, Police Administration and the Traffic Safety Institute.

The purpose of the college include: preparation of teachers; conducting research in law enforcement, driver and traffic safety, and fire safety; providing public and consulative service programs pertinent to law enforcement, corrections, driver and traffic safety, and fire safety.

Under chairman Charles H. Reedy, the Department of Correctional Services provides unique learning opportunities for students with career interests in criminal justice, corrections and related human service fields. The department features a faculty who hold academic degrees in the area of psychology, criminology, and human growth and development in addition to having practical experience in the field.

The Fire Prevention and Control Department under chairman F. D. Cozad, offers programs designed to educate and prepare individuals for positions requiring technical competency and leadership skills in fire prevention and control. The programs are designed to meet the needs of fire protection professional as well as the pre-service student.

Learning to lessen today's dangers

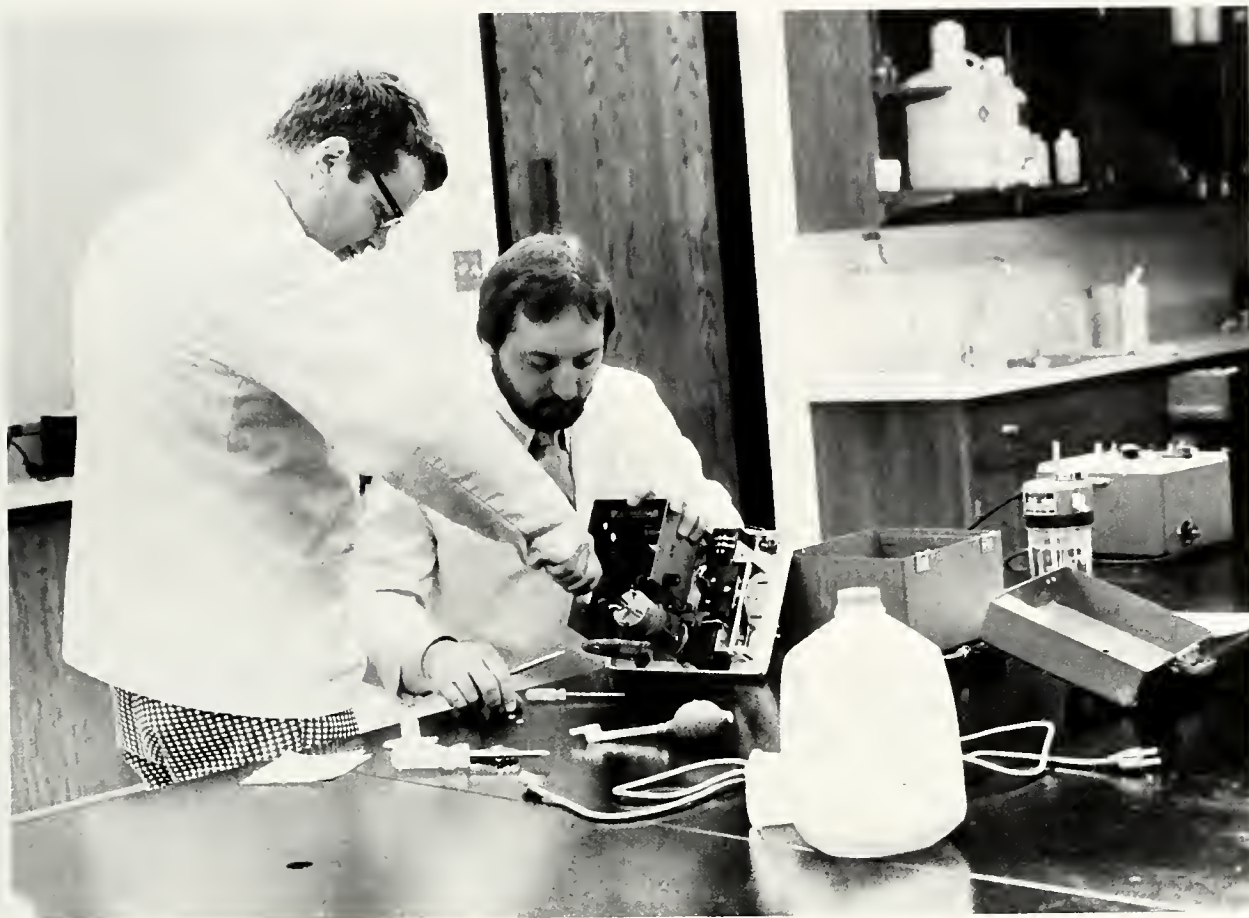

The Department of Police Administration under Chairman R. E. Bagby has programs in Business and Industrial Security, Criminalistics and Police Administration, Forensic Science and Security and Safety. The Forensic scientist is a specialist who is trained to handle laboratory analysis of physical evidence in law-science matters and may be called upon to analyze drugs, body fluids, firearms, paint, glass or blood stains. This analysis is often crucial in deciding guilt or innocence in the judicial process.

Under director W. Browne, the Traffic Safety Institute offers a variety of study courses which prepare students for a minor in the field of traffic safety as well as courses to prepare students for certification for Kentucky's driver education teaching class.

On July 1, 1979 the College of Natural and Mathematical Sciences was established by combining parts of the old Central University College and the College of Arts and Sciences. Under the direction of Dean Donald Batch, the organization of this new college has helped correct operational problems that occurred when the college was first part of the old College of Arts and Sciences. The development of the new college has also provided more manageable administration, more efficiency, more development and more communications.

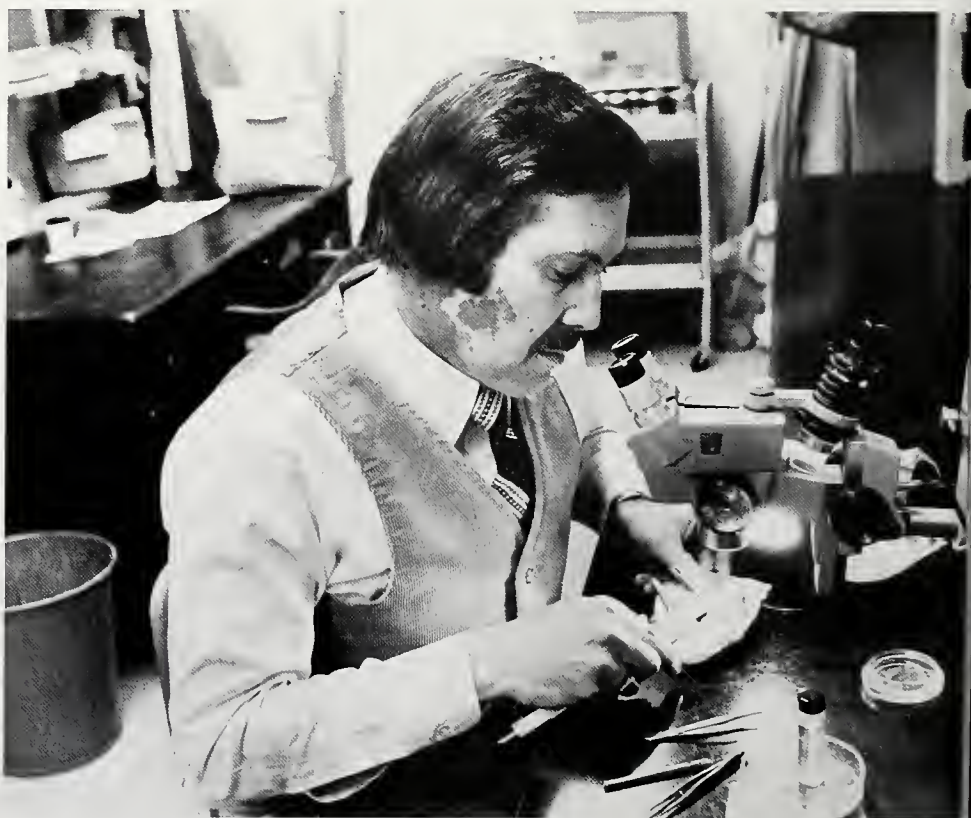

The college strives to provide courses of study for academic specialization in the natural and mathematical sciences and to offer programs to prepare students for pre-professional and professional fields.

A major thrust of the Department of Biological Sciences under the direction of Dr. Sanford Jones, are ecological and biological along with other departments like Microbiology, Biomedical Sciences and Forestry.

The Department of Chemistry under chairman Dr. Harry Smiley has programs leading to the Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science and Associate of Science degrees with additional courses in education.

Under Chairman Dr. Robert Morris, the Department of Geology is concerned with training professional geologists, earth science educators and geological and engineering technicians. Earth Science education majors have credentials for secondary school systems with earth and physical programs while the professional degree graduates are in demand for service positions, industry, and graduate school.

Dr. Marijo LeVan and the Department of Mathematical Sciences offer a broad selection of courses. The student is free to take courses in all the diverse areas while pursuing a major in the field of his/her choice. Many students minor in another field within the department, in business or in a natural science.

The Department of Natural Science, under the guidance of Dr. Bruce MacLaren, principle function is to communicate the ideas of science to the non-science major. The department offers courses in three areas, (The biological sciences, the physical sciences and the interrelationship of science and society).

Preparing the student with a solid scientific background is the job of the Department of Physics and Astronomy. The student may take a technical job in industry or government or continue in graduate study for training in scientific research.

This past academic year was the first that Eastern has had a College of Social and Behavioral Sciences. The organization of this college became effective on July 1, 1979 and was established by blending parts of the old Central University College and the College of Arts and Sciences.

Under the direction of Dean Russell Enzie, the college is concerned with mankind's social, political, economic and psychological developments. The college also focuses on the various people of the world and their historical, physical, environmental and cultural problems.

The college's programs give students an education which broadens their knowledge and gives them a perspective which extends across academic disciplines. The education the college offers also provides a background for careers in such areas as business, industry, education and study in graduate and professional schools.

The Department of Anthropology, Sociology and Social Work under Chairman Dr. Vance Wisenbaker offers degrees in numerous fields and in Anthropology, students study human beings from a broad perspective examining biological and cultural differences through the ages. Programs in Sociology introduce students to the study of social life and the social causes and consequences of human behavior, and the Social Work programs prepare students for general employment in public and social work agencies.

Studying the Development of Mankind

The Department of Geography under chairman Dr. Ronald Marionneaux offers instruction in a wide range of geographic and planning studies. It prepares professional geographers and planners for their role in society, provides the necessary academic background for prospective teachers and serves as a center of general geographic information for local, state and university communities.

Under the direction of Dr. George Robinson, the Department of History offers courses in English, Russian, Roman, Latin American and American fields as well as others. In addition, a student may also select a minor field from an even wider selection of supporting courses.

The Political Science Department under Chairman Dr. Allen Singleton offers the student a broad course of study designed to develop an understanding of political institutions and the process of developing and carrying out domestic and foreign policy in this and other countries.

Dave McCracken, a senior from Florence, takes it literally by studying cross sections of the human brain in one of his classes.

Serving a dual role in the education of undergraduates is one aspect of the Department of Psychology. Under chairman Dr. Robert Adams, all psychology majors receive a broad liberal arts education as well as an indepth study of human behavior. Students may plan their education with an eye towards graduate or professional school or towards more immediate career goals.

The Department of Social Science, under Dr. Ann Stebbins, offers a unique series of four courses designed to prepare the student-citizen to understand the contemporary world. This long-range historical perspective of mankind helps students comprehend the forces of change that have an impact on both their work and leisure.

The Development of Mankind

Educating the Body

The College of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics under Dean Russel M. Bogue has as its purpose the preparation of professionals to serve the public in the areas of fitness and healthful living, and leisure and recreation alternatives.

The Department of Health Education, under chairman Herman S. Bush, is dedicated to helping students learn the basis of good health behavior so that they will be able to influence the living habits of individuals, families and communities. Field trips and the utilization of off-campus health professionals help the department play a role in the training of the health educator.

Under chairman Fred E. Darling, the Department of Physical Education prepares students for both teaching and non teaching positions. In the teaching field there are programs that lead

The 1979 football season is one that will be remembered for years to come by Colonel fans and players. Even though the Colonels failed to win the conference crown finishing second to Murray, Eastern won the NCAA Division 1-AA championship by defeating Nevada-Reno and then Lehigh in the Pioneer Bowl in Orlando, Florida.

The Eastern team members dedicated the season and championship to the memory of Don McKinnon, a team member that died suddenly before spring practice. McKinnon's number, 68, was worn on each player's helmet and was painted in both end zones of Hanger Field.

The Colonels finished the season 11-2, and set several team records over the season. The eleven wins was the most recorded in one season by a Colonel team. Eastern scored 346 points on the year, smashing the old mark of 298. David Flores kicked 39 extra points and scored 66 total points by kicking, both new records. The Colonel scored 46 touchdowns as a team in 1979, five more than the previous high for one season.

Twelve Colonels were named to the All-OVC team led by first team Kodak All-American Bob McIntyre. The other first team members were Joe Richard, Danny Martin, David Neal, Kevin Greve, Dale Patton and David Flores.

Named to the second squad were Bill Hughes, Jerry Parrish, Alvin Miller, George Floyd and Tim Frommeyer.

The season opened with the Colonels traveling to Kent, Ohio to meet Division 1-A foe Kent State. Defense was the key; the Colonels intercepted four passes and caused two crucial fumbles as Eastern won 17-14. Dale Patton led the offense, running for 84 yards and two touchdowns.

The Trojans of Troy State opened the home schedule and Eastern avenged a 1978 setback by blanking Troy 15-0. Once again the defense played an important role, never allowing Troy to cross the Colonel twenty yard line. Dale Patton led the Colonels in rushing with 119 yards while Anthony Braxton added 81.

Hughes threw seven touchdown passes in 1979.

Parrish scored two touchdowns against Tech on runs of 16 and 46 yards. BELOW: A Western runner is swarmed under by the Colonel defense. Making the first hit is linebacker Fred Griffin while Bob McIntyre (50), George Floyd (8) and Rodney Byrd give backup support.

Eastern took a #5 ranking and a 2-0 record to Johnson City, Tennessee to face former OVC member East Tennessee, a team the Colonels had beaten five straight times. But the Bucs, the Colonel's second Division 1-A opponent of the year, snapped the streak, handing the Colonels a 27-20 loss. East Tennessee took advantage of several turnovers and made a late goal-line stand to seal the Colonel's fate.

The Colonels got back on the winning track when they came home to open conference play against Austin Peay. Senior Bill Hughes threw three touchdown passes, two to David Booze and one to Jerry Parrish, that led to the 35-10 win. Tailback Anthony Braxton ran for 102 yards and two touchdowns to round out the scoring. For the third time in four games the defense played an outstanding game as they intercepted five passes, three by George Floyd.

Next, the Colonels traveled to Middle Tennessee and the Blue Raiders proved to be no match for the Colonels. Even with Dale Patton and Anthony Braxton on the bench with injuries and quarterback Bill Hughes playing slightly more than a quarter, the Colonels ripped Middle by a 52-10 score.

Freshman Nicky Yeast filled in for Patton at fullback and ran for 103 yards while Alvin Miller, playing for Braxton, scored two touchdowns as Eastern recorded its highest score since 1968.

The California State-Fullerton Titans were the Colonels third Division 1-A foe and with a mixture of passing and running, Eastern posted an easy 33-7 victory at Hanger Field. Dale Patton and Alvin Miller both ran for touchdowns, while Jerry Parrish and Chris Curtis caught passes from Chris Issac for scores.

LEFT: James Shelton, with help from several other Colonels, makes the tackle on an Austin Peay running back. Eastern rolled over the Govs by a 35-10 score. BELOW: George Floyd (8) pounces on a Troy St. fumble just ahead of Ed Laski. The Colonels opened the home schedule by beating the Trojans 15-0.

The Colonels took a 5-1 record into Homecoming '79 against arch-rival Western. 25,600 fans, the largest crowd in OVC history saw Eastern claim an 8-6 victory in the hard fought game. Western totally shut off the Colonel offense after the two-point conversion that proved to be the game winning play. Credit for the win, however, had to go to the defense as it turned back Western time after time. With 28 seconds remaining and Eastern clinging to that 8-6 lead, cornerback Danny Martin blocked an 18 yard field goal attempt by Ricky Anderson to clinch the win.

The Colonels then traveled to Murray as the #1 team in Division 1-AA to battle for the conference lead.

Eastern's highest ranking ever lasted only a week as the Racers, before a Homecoming crowd and a regional television audience, crushed the Colonels 24-7. The Murray defense provided much of the punch as they recovered a blocked punt for a touchdown and then recovered a fumble on the following kickoff that led to a field goal. Eastern has not won at Murray since 1969 and this loss severely damaged Eastern's playoff hopes.

The Colonels returned to Hanger Field, and after a sluggish first half, bombed the Eagles of Tennessee Tech 35-0. The Colonels scored all of their touchdowns by way of the run. Split end Jerry Parrish carried the ball three times for 69 yards and two touchdowns. Dale Patton, Alvin Miller and Bruce Cox each ran for one touchdown. Miller led the Colonels in rushing with 91 yards for the game.

In the final home game of the season, the Colonels' playoff hopes were revived when Eastern beat Jackson State 27-21. Jerry Parrish caught four passes for 126 yards and Alvin Miller ran for 100 yards as the Colonels never were behind in the game. The game was decided when Eastern recovered an attempted onside kick after the final Tiger score.

Morehead was the site of the final regular season game and Eastern had a surprisingly easy time, winning 34-7. The win was the ninth of the year, a Colonel record. It also was the eighth straight win over Morehead. The Colonel defense turned the ball over to the offense five times. The offense responded by gaining over 400 yards for the game.

Floyd recovered three fumbles and intercepted eight passes in 1979.

The first round of the NCAA playoffs brought Nevada-Reno to Hanger Field to face the Colonels. Eastern, after opening a commanding lead, hung on to beat the Wolfpack in a thrilling double overtime by a 33-30 score.

Eastern, led by Alvin Miller's 144 yards rushing appeared to have an easy win as they took a 23-3 lead early in the fourthquarter. Reno came back with three touchdowns and the Colonels hung on for a tie when senior noseguard Joe Richard blocked the extra point. After both teams scored a touchdown in the first overtime, the Colonels held Reno and David Flores won the game that sent the Colonels to the finals with a field goal of 17 yards.

TOP: Colonel fans and players alike celebrate on the field after the Reno win. The win qualified the Colonels for the finals of the NCAA division 1-AA playoffs against Lehigh at the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando, Florida. ABOVE: Quarterback Bill Hughes hands off to Alvin Miller. Miller rushed 33 times for 144 yards and three touchdowns while leading the Colonels to the win. RIGHT: Freshman fullback Nicky Yeast takes the handoff from Bill Hughes as tackle Darryl Lawson, ('63), leads the blocking. The Colonels ran the ball 70 times for 290 yards in defeating Reno 33-30.

WHAT HAPPENED?

Oh, the irony of it all! The outset of the Colonel's '79-80 season was filled with the hopes and dreams that the cagers could go even further than last year's entry in the NCAA Tournament at Murfreesboro.

And what was to stop them? They had everyone back from the '79 conference championship team, except for Kenny Elliot and Vic Merchant.

Valuable men to lose — yet their Converse high tops were to be filled by the likes of Tommy Baker, a 6-2 guard out of Indiana, and a 6-4 guard-forward from Miami (Ohio), Jim Harkins. But because of a broken foot early in the season, Harkins never got the chance to show what he could do.

The entire team seemed to have that same problem; over the course of the year they never really showed what they could do, as they struggled throughout the year and ended with a disappointing 15-12 record.

The climax of that disappointment came in the semi-finals of the Ohio Valley Conference Tournament held in Diddle Arena in Bowling Green.

The epitome of the word "irony" hit the Colonels that 28th day of February. "Hit" doesn't do justice to what happened, as it was more like a brick in the face that knocked the Colonels out of the tournament.

With just a few ticks of the clock remaining, Dave Tierney missed an 18-footer, Baker rebounds, but misses and the ball is grasped by the hands of Dave Bootcheck, who sends it back up, misses it and is fouled in the process.

The ref signals a foul, the clock shows no time, and, just like last year, the timekeeper doesn't hear the horn. The refs say the game is over and the Colonels head for the locker room.

ABOVE: Muscling for position against a Tennessee Tech defender, Donnie Moore, a junior guard, grimaces as he looks for an outlet to set the offense in motion. RIGHT: By not getting enough lift, the Morehead defender presents no problem for junior C-F, Dale Jenkins. Out of New Smyrna Bch., Fla., Jenkins had a season high of 22 points against Austin Peay.

THE THREE FACES OF "TURK"

ABOVE LEFT: The outstretched arms of Western's Trey Trumbo is of no consequence to the magic touch of James "Turk" Tillman, here, about to score two of his 31 points against the Hilltoppers. ABOVE: Averaging 6.4 rebounds for the season, Turk's determination to snag another one is evident here as he had 173 for the season, 262 for his Colonel career. LEFT: Racing the length of the court during the Western game, "Turk" leaves virtually everyone else behind as he goes in for his patented one-handed flick of the wrist.

But there's no reason to feel pity for the Colonels because they gave everything they had, and then some, to the point of almost winning.

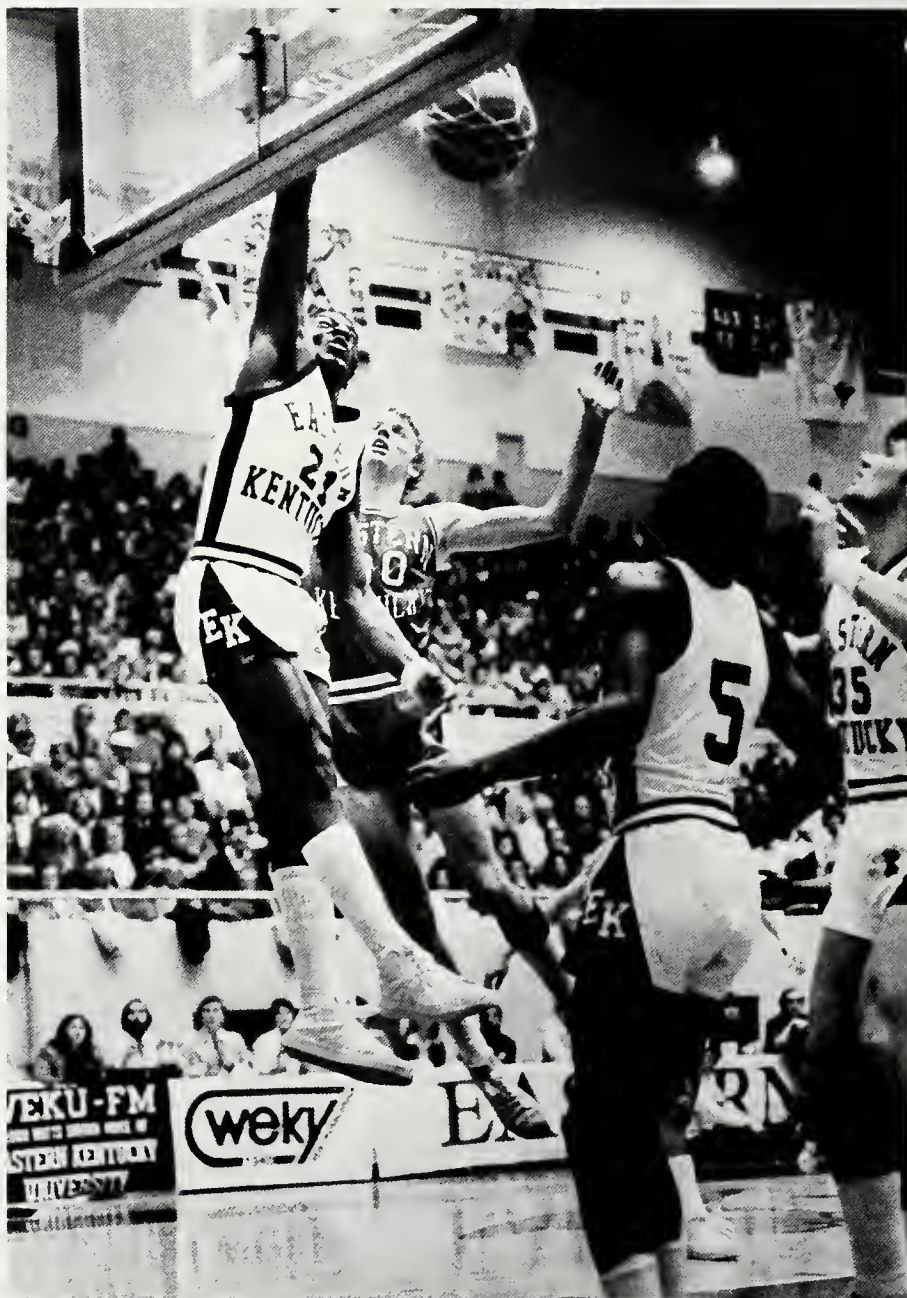

Being nine points down at the half, the Colonels came back and took over the lead as the contest headed towards history.

The Colonels came out of the locker room with the same guys, but they were a different team as Baker began to shred the net (he finished with 30 points), and with "Boot" and Anthony Conner making the middle their domain.

It was a gallant effort indeed; Tillman, in his last year, finished with 18 points, ending his college career with 1,514 points, and becoming the third leading scorer in Eastern history.

He ended the season fourth in the nation in scoring with a 27.2 average.

"Boot," as he is known to Eastern fans, tallied 15 rebounds in his last appearance as a Colonel, and scored six points.

"Boot" had a career total of 828 rebounds.

Boot's career is marked by his being the 10th all-time Eastern scorer with 1,130 points, and by his career total of 828 rebounds.

Rounding out his last season, Dave Tierney finished with 192 points for the season (fifth on the team), and 475 points for his career.

The team didn't come back home to a waiting, frenzied crowd of fans as they did last year; there were no cheers, no pictures being taken, no autographs asked for, no hugging and kissing, and no cheerleaders in sight, but that is because defeat has its price as victory has its glory. Coach Ed Byhre couldn't have summed things up better than when he said "We have nothing to be ashamed of. I'm very proud of my people."

ABOVE: Western's Tony Wilson appears to be holding up guard Tommy Baker on his shoulders, after Baker shoved another one home against the Hilltoppers, leaving nothing but a rush of air and the remains of a scorched net. BELOW: After gaining possession of the rebound, Dave Bootcheck, in his final season as a Colonel, is about to bank one from inside the lane. "Boot" had a season high of 15 points against Akron.

Go Big E! Go Big E!

That has become the trademark of Colonel fans everywhere, but the ones who get this and many other chants going and always keep spirit high are Eastern's cheerleaders.

Under the watchful eye of their sponsor Dr. Donald Calitri, the squad traveled to Murray to support the football Colonels and went to sunny Orlando, Florida to cheer

Eastern to the NCAA Division I-AA National Championship. The group also followed the basketball team to Western and Morehead and to Bowling Green for the OVC Tournament.

New routines, dance steps, and acrobatic stunts were an exciting addition to the many athletic events and pep rallies that the squad performed at, because win or lose — they cheered.

Lykes, only a freshman, was used mainly as a relief pitcher by the Colonels in 1979.

The 1979 baseball Colonels could never seem to get on the right track as they were plagued by inconsistent play and rainy weather.

Eastern could manage to play only 30 of 47 scheduled games as they compiled a record of 11-19 overall and 6-11 in the conference.

Part of the blame for the Colonels' poor showing may lie in the drop in team batting average. Eastern batted .279 as a team in 1979, a drop of nearly fifty points from their .328 average in 1978.

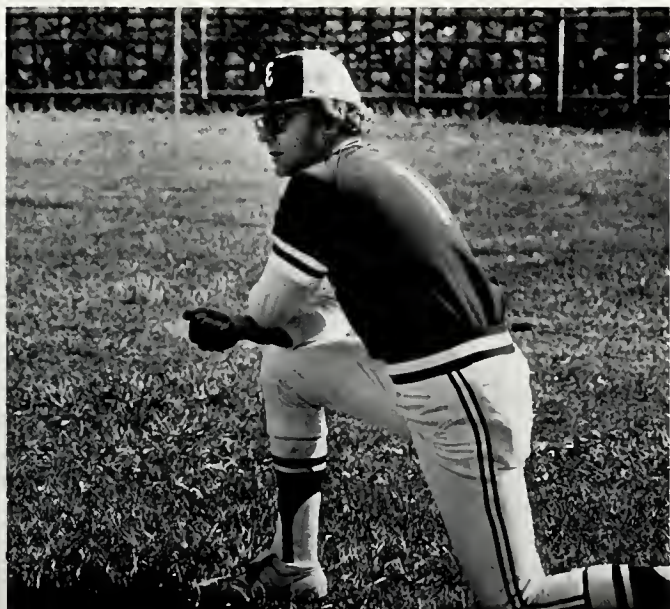

Senior Corky Prater, who made the All-OVC team for the third time, led the Colonels in batting with a .342 average while hitting five homers and collecting 21 RBI's. Prater was joined on the All-OVC team by senior second baseman Rick Bibbins and junior pitcher Tom McNulty.

Bibbins led the team in home runs, with eight and RBI's, with 30.

McNulty was the leading pitcher with a record of 5-1 and an ERA of 3.79. The team ERA was 5.21.

Though the 1979 Colonels' golf team had been ranked as high as 16th nationally during the spring season, Austin Peay showed no sign of being intimidated by the Colonels in the OVC tournament.

The ranking was to no avail as the Colonels' 895 strokes placed them second to the Governors' 893 in the spring match.

But first-year coach Ray Struder did direct his linksters to first place in the Kentucky Intercollegiate Tournament.

The team's 841 score put them at 23 under par for the 54-hole tournament, breaking the old school record of 20 under par.

The squad ended the year with a superb won-lost record of 87-20-1.

The team also traveled to Statesboro, Ga., to compete for the first time in the Chris Schenkel Intercollegiate; the tournament Struder described as "the most prestigious college tournament in the nation."

And prestigious it was: 12 of the 21 teams in the field were ranked in the nation's top 20.

The Colonels placed a respectable 10th and as a result received an automatic invitation to the 1980 tournament.

Among other highlights, team captain Dave Clement, Dave Gaer and Mike Frey, were voted to the 1979 All-OVC squad.

Team "Faulters" at season's end

The 1979 men's tennis team, with five returning players and five freshmen, finished their season with 14 wins and 17 losses, capping the season with an exciting 5 to 4 win over the Wildcats of UK.

But as far as the OVC tournament and the Greg Adams Invitational go, the young netters didn't fare too well, finishing sixth in the tournament and tying for sixth out of seven in the invitational.

Being a young team, they were inconsistent in their play.

The top three players for coach Tom Higgins were freshmen Jeff Zinn, number one, Kurt Heurerman number two, and ranked third was Rick Vandish.

The number one team of Zinn and fifth ranked Mark Holstein was important in the netters season as they were the most consistent in doubles play.

Zinn and Holstein highlighted the doubles competition during the Ohio State match by beating the Buckeyes doubles team which was runner-up in the Big-10 doubles in the spring of 1978.

Although the 1979 track team had a fairly successful season, they did not capture first place often.

Pitted against the strong programs and world class runners at other conference schools, the Colonels could manage no better than fifth at the OVC outdoor championships held at Tennessee Tech.

In the indoor meet held at Middle Tennessee Eastern finished fourth.

Eastern could manage no individual champions at either meet, although Jerry Parrish failed by only one-tenth of a second to qualify for the nationals in the 60 meter indoor race.

Several school records were broken during the 1979 season. Senior Doug Bonk broke records in the three mile and 10,000 meter runs. Chris Goodwin, a senior, broke his own triple jump record that he set in 1978 with a jump of 51 feet nine inches, and Brian Dowds broke the discus record with a toss of 160 feet-five inches.

Rick Erdmann was named to replace Art Harvey as coach of the men's team for the 1980 season.

"Don't Look Back"

After losing by only three points to Murray State in a heartbreaking defeat for the KWIC State Championship, the ECU women's track team ran away with the OVC track crown the second year in a row, by scoring 214 points, while their next closest competitor, Murray State, finished over 60 points behind with 147.

Only three seniors returned for the 1979 Season: Rose Travis, Denise McCoy and Vickie Renner.

However, many experienced underclassmen helped to balance the roster which contained nine first year members.

For head coach Sandy Martin's crew, the OVC title was an extra special surprise following the major loss of long-distance runner, Sue Schaefer, who underwent ankle surgery.

Junior Teri Seippel was once again a standout as she placed 12th in the Nationals in her speciality, the pentathlon, despite being slightly injured.

Field events had their bright spot too, when Marie Geisler broke the school record for the javelin throw, with a hurl of 132 feet, 11½ inches.

Eastern's Electrifying Eels, facing a tough schedule with a team consisting of many freshmen and sophomores swam to a disappointing 3-6 dual meet record. The Eels faced powers such as Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky Kent State and Ohio State, and participated in the Midwest Independent Championships where they finished fourth in a strong field of ten. The Eels were entered in the Midwest meet when the traditional Kentucky Swimming and Diving meet was terminated. The Eels were led by team captain Mark Sullivan, Ron Siggs and Chris Gray, who set several personal best marks during the season. Freshmen David Rolf and Paul Grecco had outstanding meets against Western in a very close meet that the Eels lost in the last race.

Almost Perfect

The 1980 season proved to be one of the best ever for men's gymnastics at Eastern as the team performed consistently throughout the season in posting an 8-2 dual meet record. The team set a scoring record against Georgia with a score of 224.2 and Craig Struening set records in rings, vaulting and floor events during the season. The team, which had no seniors, was led by freshman Craig Struening, sophomore Dave Smith, and Co-captains Dave Cole and George Gardner, both juniors.

The team was 1-5 in Ohio Valley Conference play, while going 2-10 in the Kentucky Women's Intercollegiate Conference. A major problem was a lack of concentration during crucial moments of many of the games.

Loretta Coughlin led the Lady Colonels in scoring and assists with 9.6 points per game and 89 assists on the year. Coughlin was also named to the All-OVC team for her senior season. Freshman forward Tina Wermuth added 9.4 points to a very balanced scoring attack. Sophomore forward Sandra Mukes led the team in rebounds with 7.8 per game followed by Wermuth's 6.6 per game.

The 1979-80 rifle team lived up to their billing as one of the top teams in the country by finishing fifth in the nation and receiving a bid to the NCAA finals. The team, which had only one senior, participated for the first time in both small bore and air rifle competition and fared well in both. The best finish was a second place in a field of 29 in the Walsh Tournament at Xavier University. Eastern placed three team members nationally in the top 40 small bore competition. They were Dan Durbin, Karen Long and Mark Bender. In air rifle competition, Durbin and Long were joined by Ron Wigger and Susan Floer in the top 40. The other team members are Judy Kaufman, Larry Sawyer, and Kim Floer. The coach was Sgt. Nelson Beard.

... Bullseye!

ABOVE: The pain and the fatigue of a cross country runner is evident here, as junior, Steve Angerman tries to comfort fellow runner, Kelvin Lewis. Angerman finished fifth in the OVC meet with a time of 24:20.

Coaching transitions are usually tough.

Tough on the team members and just as tough on the incoming coach.

And when Rick Erdman replaced Art Harvey as the track and cross country coach, there were a few problems.

However, it seems that the problems weren't of any major consequence as the team opened their season with the taking of the team championship in the Joe Binks Memorial Run, held in Louisville.

Following up the Binks meet, the harriers travelled to Lexington for the Kentucky Invitational.

Their fourth place finish was led by number one runner, Bill Morgan, a junior out of Rochester, Michigan.

Morgan placed eighth with a time of 32:01 in the 10,000 meter run.

At the Kentucky Intercollegiate Championship meet, held at Murray State, ECU finished second with a score of 56, behind defending champion Western Kentucky, with 22 points, and ahead of Murray with 62, and Morehead State with 93.

Again, Morgan led the harrier pack in the ECU Invitational, by coming in second place, with a time of 23:42.

This helped ECU gain the first place honors in the five mile run with 24 points, followed by Morehead and the University of Cincinnati.

Erdman termed this "as an excellent performance," for the team.

Only a trace of that excellence was found, though, in the OVC Championship meet held at Tennessee Tech University.

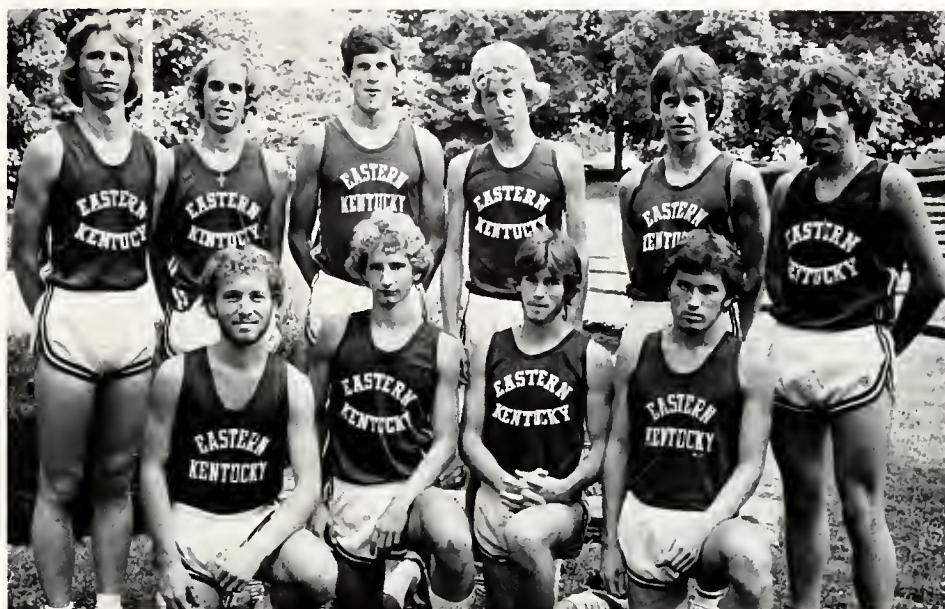

The harriers fell to a fourth place showing with a score of 113, behind Morehead with 90, Murray with 48, and Western taking first with 25 points.

This was particularly disappointing to the team and Erdman, because they had beat Morehead four times previously in the season.

The Long Run

The individual highlight of the 1979 Women's Cross Country team had come three weeks after the season had ended; and it had come with a title and a plaque to senior Paula Gaston from Richmond, Kentucky.

"1979 OVC Women's Cross Country Runner of the Year," is Gaston's title and deservedly so.

After number one runner, Sue Schaefer, a junior out of Williamsville, N. Y., had suffered an injury to her hip, which sidelined her, Gaston had to take up the slack.

And she did take up the slack for the harriers by taking first place in the OVC Championship meet with a time of 19:02.

Eastern finished third in the 5,000 meter meet, but Coach Sandy Martin was very pleased with Gaston's run by stating that "she ran a fantastic meet."

In the Kentucky Invitational, Gaston finished 14th in a field of 80 with a time of 19:50.

Before her injury, Schaefer marked the opening of the season with a first place finish with a time of 18:53, against Murray State and Morehead.

A week later, Schaefer again finished first with a time of 18:37 against Middle Tennessee.

Martin was impressed with the fact that all runners had improved their times considerably when compared from the outset of the season to the closing of it.

Stressing that the people who made up the squad "did a very, very good job," Martin said that she hasn't coached a team who has worked so hard since the Fall team of '78, which finished sixth in the AIAW National Meet.

Volleyballers get "Spiked"

The 1979 volleyball team fell into a slump at the beginning of the season with six straight losses, before putting a mark in the win column.

Their play was inconsistent at the start of the year as the women lost 11 of their first 14 matches, but rebounded to win seven times during the last half of the season.

The Colonels hosted their sixth annual tournament, bringing in 16 teams to Weaver Gym and the Begley Building.

Eastern won one of its four matches in the tourney, with 80 percent passing efficiency complementing the vital play of sophomore Kay Beiger at the setter-all around spot, out of Ft. Mitchell, Kentucky.

Going into the Division I KWIC title, there was a three way tie between Northern Kentucky, Morehead and Kentucky.

Eastern played Louisville in the first round, splitting a pair, and then fell to Northern Kentucky by scores of 15-6, 15-6.

The Colonels ended their season at 11-20-1.

They Found Their Racquet

The netter's Fall season was very pleasing to coach Martha Mullins, as they ended their regular season 10-4 and placed second, for the second year in a row, in the Kentucky Women's Intercollegiate Conference Championship.

By the time of the KWIC Championships, the netters were at their peak after beating Middle Tennessee, 6-3 and Miami of Ohio, 5-4.

Mullins said that she's very pleased that "we entered the state tournament while playing our best."

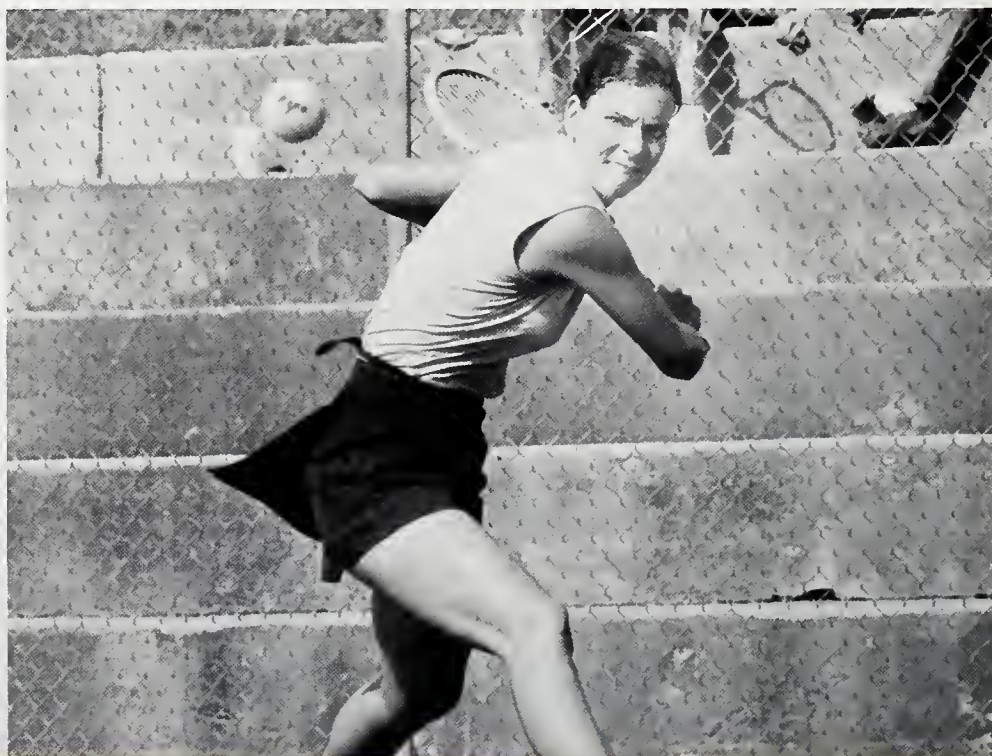

The team won the semi-finals by beating Western Kentucky, but lost in the finals by a narrow margin of 4-5 at the hands of the University of Kentucky.

Earlier in the season, the netters had lost to the Wildcats by a score of 1-8.

This second place show qualified EKU for the AIAW Region II Tournament in the spring, 1980.

STATE CHAMPIONS

Coach Lynne Harvel's way of expressing the field hockey team's performance this year came in two simple words: "Super, super."

Since Harvel's appearance at Eastern in 1978, the team has progressed to become this year's state champions. They compiled a regular season record of nine wins, two losses and four ties.

Upon beating the University of Louisville, 2-0 for the state championship, the team traveled to the regionals in Virginia where they placed fifth after losing to the University of Virginia, 1-0, then beating Clemson of South Carolina, 3-2.

Jackie Stivers, a sophomore out of Fairport, N.Y. led the offense at the halfwing position, scoring 10 points (the team's high scorer), while forward Patty Drumm, a junior out of Toms River, N.J., had six goals.

Harvel felt that the strong point to this years winning season was due to the strength of the defense, headed by Sharon Stivers and Carmen Shannon.

Stivers, a senior and also from Fairport, N.Y., was outstanding at the sweep position, keeping the opponents from scoring from the striking circle.

Shannon, a senior from Dayton, Ohio, was praised by Harvel for her talents as goal keeper.

Shannon allowed only four goals during the season, while posting nine shutouts.

Shannon's defensive skills were apparent during the University of Dayton game where she had 30 saves.

"Super, Super!"

If you happen to wander down Van Hoose drive, past the Brockton apartments, you'll probably see hundreds of people out on the athletic fields enjoying themselves participating in intramural sports.

Whether it's basketball, softball, flag football or any of the department sponsored club sports, intramurals are a way for students to escape the tensions of going to class and trying to overcome that ever troubling homework problem.

The headline, "Anyone can play" means just that — anyone, who wants to have fun and enjoy themselves can go out and get involved in the exciting world of intramural sports.

The production of the Milestone is a major undertaking. Each year a new staff assembles to create a chronicle of the year at Eastern, and the efforts of that staff is a story in itself.

Under editor Chris Elsberry, the 1979-80 staff produced the fifty-seventh volume of the yearbook.

It was a learning process: the staff learned the skills involved in printing, and they also learned about themselves.

The people pictured on these pages did their best to keep the year alive with their words and pictures.

Student Government Keeps Things Together

Listening to complaints and dealing with problems concerning the student body and the administration gave the student government of Eastern a full time job this year.

The Student Senate works directly with the college's constitution affecting the students. A few of the Senates concerns this year included library and open house hours.

The Executive Council

serves as an advising committee to the President of the Senate. The Council is made up of individual committees and they report on their recent activities which then is discussed in the Senate meetings.

The Senate chooses the members to act on the Student Court. These students must maintain a certain grade point average and have an active interest in the students and campus as a whole. The court also serves as a place for students to come and express their feelings on action of the administration.

Each year the Senate helps the University plan the annual Arts and Crafts Fair held in the fall and spring. Other projects included student book exchange, freshman records and Free University classes.

Dean of the Faculty
Retired

Down, down, down into the darkness of the grave,
Gently they go, the beautiful, the tender, the kind;
Quietly they go, the intelligent, the witty, the brave.
I know. But I do not approve. And I am not resigned.

EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY

EDITOR'S NOTE

It is finally here. Neither snow nor rain nor hangovers nor missed deadlines nor nasty letters from publishers could keep us from accomplishing our goal of making the 1980 Milestone that you now hold before you the best yearbook that Eastern has ever seen.

A lot happened this past year, we welcomed a new decade, and fondly looked back on the one we left behind; the football team stomped Lehigh to win the NCAA Division I-AA Championship; some crazed militants in Iran took over the American embassy and held our fellow countrymen hostage; we said hello to a pretty new first lady and her husband, the governor; and for a change, didn't have to put up with the Starbuck in concert.

There will be many memories that will linger forever The ACP trip to San Francisco; going down to Orlando to see the Colonels win it all; the countless Domino's pizzas we ate during our many late night sessions; the rare, but always welcomed "cold ones" that would somehow manage to find their way into the office for us to enjoy; and the lasting friendships that were made while this book was in production.

If you've noticed something different about this year's book, then the work has all been worthwhile. We branched out in all directions in terms of layout and design, headline size and type, and of course, color pages. Although we "slightly" overspent our budget, there is no doubt that it was well worth it; and for that my first thank you must go to Mr. Donald Feltner who allowed us the freedom, in the areas of design and in the area of finance, to do what we wanted to.

Another major thank you goes to my advisor, Larry Bailey, who somehow stayed sane throughout my incessant whining and complaining and made sure everything came out just right. Thank yous galore go out to all my section editors, who also were able to put up with the continual pressure of deadlines (well, sometimes) and complete all that was assigned to them. Tom Ross and Steve Thomas; Sports, Leslie Kunkle and Nancy Bahls; Organizations, Ashley Boyd; Honors, Jackie Spencer; Academics, Matt Davies; Student Life and Claudia Boykin; Classes and Index. An extra special thanks to my Managing Editor, Barry Miller, whose artistic wit and flair for writing brought some class to a usually animalistic office.

This brings us to the photographers, and their fearless leader, Paul Lambert. Paul really helped us out of some tight jams this year and his ego won't ever let me forget it. To the other photographers, Scott Adams, Steve Brown, Connie Langley, Will Mansfield, Brian Potts and Mike Vesico; all the wonderful people in Public Information, and last but certainly not least, Ralph Van Dyke, Bill Stoess, and Becky Alexander and everyone at Delmar Publishing Company; without you this book would not have been possible. Thank you very much.

Finally, to everyone that has a copy of this book: I hope you enjoy the finished product as much as I enjoyed putting the bloody thing together.

CHRISTOPHER ELSBERRY
